

SOLONS VOTE FOR 15 POLICE

NEW MOVE MADE FOR SPECIALS; SALARY FIXED AT $5 MONTHLY

Councilmen Farrall and Kerr Oppose Ordinance.

FIRST READING

Five to Two Vote to Pave Second Street With Rails Down.

In the face of the claim of economy prompting the anti-police captaincy legislation, which will be submitted to a referendum at the November 4 election, the city council, Friday night, by a vote of 5 to 2, placed on first reading an ordinance; authorizing the appointment of 15 special police officers, who shall draw a salary of $5 per month.

Contains Emergency Clause
The ordinance was opposed by Councilmen Thomas Farrall and Press Kerr, who pointed out that it means an additional expenditure of $75 a month. Solons Raymond Chambers, John D. Hays, Fred Eardley, James Larcombe and John B. Rowe supported it.

The proposal contains an emergency clause, which prevents its submission to a referendum in the event it is placed on two more readings and is permitted to become a law by Mayor Brown.

Second in importance to the special police ordinance, enactment of which follows Mayor Brown's action a few weeks ago in dismissing six special officers who had not been selected from the classified list, and who served without pay, was action on the much-discussed Second street improvement plan.

Kerr and Farrall Oppose.
Following the submission of a supplemental list of signers to the petition for the improvement of the street over top the railway tracks, and council's refusal to accept the additional names because of the manner in which they were submitted, action was taken on the ordinance.

By a vote of 5 to 2, Solons Kerr and Farrall again registering negative ballots, council placed the Second street measure—improvement of the street with the car tracks remaining in position—on first reading. A resolution was passed providing for the improvement of the alley between Chestnut and May streets and extending from West Ninth to St. John street.

Acting upon the protest of School Board Members J. H. Brooks and D. P. White, the solons rescinded their previous action in ordering removal of the telephone from the Central school building to the police tower in the Diamond.

Meeting Saturday Night.
Although copies of the ordinance authorizing the safety director to purchase three automatic lights for control of traffic were in the hands of councilmen, the measure was not presented. It is understood the fact that the city has no funds available for the proposed lights prompted the decision.

BOWDLER NAMED IN U. S. GRAND JURY REPORT

Another Officer of West Virginia Company Accused.

Indictments against Arthur E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and Gordon D. Uylatt, officials of the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company and the likewise defunct Belmont Securities company, alleged to have swindled Wheeling, W. Va., people out of hundreds of thousands of dollars with a clever stock selling scheme, were returned by the federal grand jury making its report at U. S. court at Wheeling Friday afternoon.

The two separate indictments charge Bowdler and Uylatt with using the mails to defraud, dividing schemes to defraud, and numerous other federal charges alleging gross violations of the U. S. postal laws. According to B. L. Pitcher, postal inspector from Washington, D. C., who presented the indictments to the grand jury, 59 separate counts could have been lodged against the defendants. He explained that the multiplicity of counts was avoided because the government had practically "an air tight case."

Case Probed For Months.
The indictments are the result of an exhaustive examination which has been conducted in Wheeling for the past several months by Inspector Pitcher, into the conditions surrounding the arrest of Uylatt and Bowdler last May 7, and the business of the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage Company and the Belmont Securities Company. Of the 59 counts which Inspector Pitcher said could have been cited, 200 of them are visible in letters exhibited at the inspector's office which the defunct companies mailed to stock holders.

Both Bowdler and Uylatt, who have cases pending against them in state court, are reported to be an indefinite "somewhere in Pennsylvania." They were released on a bond of $5,000 each when the first charges against them were preferred. Government authorities are in communication with the men, it is known.

The case attracts much interest in Wheeling, due to the hundreds of Women Dominate in Center Section of Second and Washington Streets' Tabernacle During Friday Evening Service.

BY T. T. JONES
Affirming that men and women could not be Christians while yielding to the wiles and expediences of the world, Dr. W. E. Biederwolf pleaded for a standard of living that would conclusively manifest individual righteousness at the Second and Washington streets tabernacle on Friday night. His subject was "The Devil's Cup."

"People cannot live a good Lord and a good devil sort of time all the time and expect character development and a meeting up with Christ's requirements in this life," he said.

Women dominated in the big center section at the tabernacle during the service, they from all revival co-operating churches, having gathered in the First Presbyterian church, and following the example of the churchmen on Thursday night they paraded through the Diamond, circled at Sixth street and proceeded via Washington street to the service.

Outnumbering the men, 400 persons it was estimated formed the big delegation—the second one so far attending the revival, they wended their way to the reserved section amid cheers where they listened intently.

Band Leads Procession.
Leading the procession was the Salvation Army band with Adjutant A. H. Dean, local commander, heading the entire contingent. Due appreciation was given the marchers by Dr. Biederwolf before his sermon. He commented on their outnumbering the men and complimented them on their victory. "It is an honor to march for Calvin Coolidge, Davis, Bryan, Wilson and Roosevelt," he said, "but how much more so is it a distinction to do so for King Emanuel. In so doing you honor also yourselves." He drew a laugh when he said "Men are the head of the house, the women the neck. But it takes the neck to turn the head."

Preceding the sermon by Dr. Biederwolf the big choir was reinforced to another piano added Friday afternoon to the orchestra by R. O. Cline, East End, which Miss Wilma Davis, woman worker of the party, played, while Miss Edwina Nilsson, high school girl, presided as usual at the organ. The choir, forcefully directed by William McEwan, dispensed appealing music, the songs reverberating throughout the huge half-square auditorium. Old and new hymns in turn were rendered, all with pleasing and spiritual effect.

Evangelist's Tribute to Mother.
Following the opening prayer by Adjutant John H. Dean, commander of the East Liverpool contingent of the Salvation Army, Dr. Biederwolf announced that the solo of Mr. McEwan would be that composed some years ago by him in honor of the evangelist's mother. "I seldom speak publicly of my mother," commented Dr. Biederwolf. She was a queen of this earth and in glory now. She came to America from Germany—an orphan girl of eleven and for a time sold matches and biscuits on the streets of New York. She was pure as a prayer and later became the mother of a Presbyterian church in a little Indiana town.

The song No. 155 in the song book used at the revival is entitled "My Mother's Song." The choruses in turn include favorite hymns such as "Abide With Me" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Assisted by Mr. Heaton the choir joined in the humming of the choruses as Mr. McEwan tellingly sang his musical contribution.

Announcement was made of the street meeting to follow Saturday

This decision was forced on the government by the Christian general, Fu Yuh Slang, whose troops have Peking under martial law with all Railway communications cut.

Wu is still fighting at the head of his personal army against Chang Tao Lin on the Shanhaikwan front and considerable apprehension exists as to how he will take his sudden undermining from absolute control of the government.

RENEWS CHALLENGE TO DEMOCRAT TO TAKE STUMP IN OHIO FIGHT

Theodore G. Risley, Solicitor of U. S. Department of Labor, Tells Pottery Workers Importance of Protective Tariff, Sponsored by Republican Party—Judge Gibb, of Columbus, Also Speaks.

Challenging Governor Vic Donahey to come before the voters and declare whom he is supporting for president, former Governor Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, candidate for re-election, scored the present Democratic administration, and Theodore G. Risley, solicitor and acting secretary of the department of labor at Washington, urged support of President Coolidge, upheld the protective tariff and attacked the policies of Robert M. La Follette, Independent candidate for president, in addresses at a rally Friday night in the Ceramic theatre.

Judge Gibb of Columbus, assistant to Attorney General Crabbe, compared achievements of the Davis and Donahey administrations in his talk.

The former governor was greeted by an enthusiastic audience that filled the auditorium of the theater and his remarks were frequently applauded.

G. E. Davidson Presides.

Willis Davidson acted as temporary chairman and introduced Attorney George Davidson as chairman. Attorney Davidson spoke on East Liverpool's need of protective tariff and stated that he was "unable to understand how many persons in East Liverpool can be anything but a Republican."

He then introduced Mr. Risley, who asserted that there are enough republican votes to elect Coolidge and urged that people get out the vote, declaring that "a vote in the ballot box is worth 1,000 speeches."

The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, the present Republican law governing duties on imports, was lauded by the labor solicitor who cited conditions in New England as showing the benefits of this law to the laboring man. He declared the Republican party favored the protective tariff and a living wage.

Senator LaFollette was scored by the speaker for his misrepresentation of labor conditions, his attitude towards the Socialist party, his campaign for abolition of the power of federal courts and his stand on the tariff question.

LaFollette is Assailed.
Mr. Risley declared that LaFollette sought protection by tariff for products of Wisconsin, his home state, but opposed similar rates for products of other states.

The Wisconsin senator was branded by the speaker as "not fit to be in the United States senate let alone as president of the United States." He also charged that LaFollette was endeavoring to have the election thrown into the senate through a deadlock in the house of representatives so that he and other members of the radical minority could dictate the selection of the next executive.

Risley closed his address with a fervent appeal that the people of East Liverpool vote for "the greatest man that ever filled the presidential chair, Calvin Coolidge."

Judge Gibb, the next speaker, praised Governor Davis' labor attitude and attacked Governor Donahey's failure to reduce taxes as was promised.

He termed the Davis regime two years ago as the "golden age" in Ohio

Five to Two Vote to Pave Second Street With Rails Down.

In the face of the claim of economy prompting the anti-police captaincy legislation, which will be submitted to a referendum at the November 4 election, the city council, Friday night, by a vote of 5 to 2, placed on first reading an ordinance, authorizing the appointment of 15 special police officers, who shall draw a salary of $5 per month.

The proposal contains an emergency clause, which prevents its submission to a referendum in the event it is placed on two more readings and is permitted to become a law by Mayor Brown.

Secretary Wallace has been unconscious since yesterday afternoon, it was ascertained here this morning.

At 10 o'clock, Dr. Boone said his condition was "most unfavorable" and that the toxemia condition had spread widely through the system.

There was another consultation of doctors over Secretary Wallace at 9 o'clock this morning, participated in by Drs. Coupal and Boone, white house physicians; Dr. Joseph T. Boggs, Johns Hopkins specialist, and Drs. Stryne and Johnson.

Danger Sign Posts Will be Placed on Fifth Street Hill

Plans for the erection of danger signs at the top of the East Fifth street hill, in Pennsylvania avenue, were announced Saturday by E. M. Diehl, secretary of the motor club.

These signs are known as the Redflex. One will face motorists as they reach the top of the hill before rounding the blind curve there and the other will warn motorists westbound in Pennsylvania avenue.

The locations for the signs were marked out by Chief of Police McDermott and Secretary Diehl several days ago. The signs will be put in position next week.

RENEWS CHALLENGE TO DEMOCRAT TO TAKE STUMP IN OHIO FIGHT

Theodore G. Risley, Solicitor of U. S. Department of Labor, Tells Pottery Workers Importance of Protective Tariff, Sponsored by Republican Party—Judge Gibbs, of Columbus, Also Speaks.

Challenging Governor Vic Donahey to come before the voters and declare whom he is supporting for president, former Governor Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, candidate for re-election, scored the present Democratic administration, and Theodore G. Risley, solicitor and acting secretary of the department of labor at Washington, urged support of President Coolidge, upheld the protective tariff and attacked the policies of Robert M. La Follette, Independent candidate for president, in addresses at a rally Friday night in the Ceramic theater.

Judge Gibbs of Columbus, assistant to Attorney General Crabbe, compared achievements of the Davis and Donahey administrations in his talk.

The former governor was greeted by an enthusiastic audience that filled the auditorium of the theater and his remarks were frequently applauded.

G. E. Davidson Presides.

Willis Davidson acted as temporary chairman and introduced Attorney George Davidson as chairman. Attorney Davidson spoke on East Liverpool's need of protective tariff and stated that he was "unable to understand how many persons in East Liverpool can be anything but a Republican."

He then introduced Mr. Risley, who asserted that there are enough republican votes to elect Coolidge and urged that people get out the vote, declaring that "a vote in the ballot box is worth 1,000 speeches."

The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, the present Republican law governing duties on imports, was lauded by the labor solicitor who cited conditions in New England as showing the benefits of this law to the laboring man. He declared the Republican party favored the protective tariff and a living wage.

Senator LaFollette was scored by the speaker for his misrepresentation of labor conditions, his attitude towards the Socialist party, his campaign for abolition of the power of federal courts and his stand on the tariff question.

LaFollette is Assailed.
Mr. Risley declared that LaFollette sought protection by tariff for products of Wisconsin, his home state, but opposed similar rates for products of other states.

The Wisconsin senator was branded by the speaker as "not fit to be in the United States senate let alone as president of the United States." He also charged that LaFollette was endeavoring to have the election thrown into the senate through a deadlock in the house of representatives so that he and other members of the radical minority could dictate the selection of the next executive.

Risley closed his address with a fervent appeal that the people of East Liverpool vote for "the greatest man that ever filled the presidential chair, Calvin Coolidge."

Judge Gibbs, the next speaker, praised Governor Davis' labor attitude and attacked Governor Donahey's failure to reduce taxes as was promised.

He termed the Davis regime two years ago as the "golden age" in Ohio

Prisoner Will Get Chance to "Sober Up" Behind Bars

Arthur Parker of Jethro told Justice P. V. Mackall Friday night that he "hadn't drawn a sober breath" since July, so Mackall arranged for Parker to get a few sober ones in between now and February 8, 1925.

Parker was arrested on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor, preferred by his wife, Mrs. Susie Parker. When Officer T. C. Smith went to the Parker home, he found Parker and a small quantity of liquor.

The prisoner was arraigned before Mackall and pleaded guilty. Mackall fined him $50 and costs and as Parker couldn't pay he was sent to Lisbon to languish in the county jail until the fine and costs are paid, and that will be until next February.

Protests Pour in As Press Reveals Income Tax Returns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Harrassed by an avalanche of complaints and besieged with a flood of requests for enlightenment, government officials were still groping around here today in a maze of uncertainty and confusion over the publication of income tax returns.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his principal aides, believing that publication of the returns is illegal, nevertheless took the ground that enforcement of the law is not up to the treasury department, but to the department of justice.

So far as the treasury is concerned the matter is a closed incident, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair said.

"The bureau of internal revenue explicitly outlined its position in telegrams to collectors advising that a provision of the revised statutes makes it unlawful to publish any income tax returns," Blair said.

"If this law has been violated it is up to the department of justice to act, see no necessity of the treasury formally calling to the attention of the attorney general the fact."

Wall of Secrecy Around Undermyer's Reported Bombshell

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—An impenetrable wall of secrecy was erected and maintained today by the Borah investigating committee about a story of Republican campaign expenditures, which Samuel Undermyer, attorney of Senator Robert M. La Follette, promises to be the most sensational yet produced in connection with the "slush fund" charges.

"Two men from Chicago," will tell the story to the committee, according to Undermyer, but he would not put them on the stand for examination without first relating their story to Senator Borah and the other investigators in a secret session. Their testimony, Undermyer said, would probably have a disastrous effect, and it was for that reason that he declined, he explained, to have the story "spread before the country" before he committee was given an opportunity to obtain corroborative evidence of the new charges which are so made.

Ulster Deports De Valera After Visit to Newry

BELFAST, Oct. 25.—Eamon De Valera, head of the Irish Republicans, who was arrested yesterday, was deported today. He was sent across the border into the Irish Free State after promising he would not return.

According to a dispatch from Dublin, De Valera arrived there shortly before noon. Official announcement was made that De Valera will be interned if he tries to return to Newry. The situation in Newry is quiet.

politics and stressed Davis' appointment of women to state offices.

Mr. Davis' Speech.

Mr. Davis said: While it is not my purpose tonight to discuss national issues for you have already heard them ably discussed, I want the people of East Liverpool and of all Ohio to know that my first interest in this campaign and the interest of every candidate on the state ticket is that our president, Calvin Coolidge, be elected next month.

"Every day and night of this campaign I have repeatedly pronounced that I shall support President Coolidge and have been asking that all Ohio voters do the same. All right thinking people will agree with me that they should be told what presidential candidate the head of the state ticket favors.

In this connection I would like to ask what candidate for president my opponent in the governorship race is supporting. The nominations were made long since, the presidential candidates are in the field and yet not a word has been heard from the governor of Ohio on his candidate. The voters are entitled to know which of the three presidential candidates he is supporting.

"For weeks we have been trying to get the governor to go before the people and tell them, face to face, what he has accomplished in his administration and given an accounting of his stewardship. He has failed to do so.

"But we have him giving a radio speech which someone prepared for him. Still he explains none of the things we have asked him to explain. He uses the radio to evade questions regarding his regime.

"But now that he consents to speak to the public from behind closed doors, let him tell the people of Ohio which candidate for president he supports.

"Has the Democratic candidate for president, John W. Davis, said or done anything that makes it impossible for the candidate for governor to come out openly and support him? The people know who is my candidate for president. Surely they are entitled to know who is the candidate of the Democratic nominee for governor.

Raps Donahay's Address. Charging Gov. Donahay's statements made in a radio speech Thursday night were fabrications, Mr. Davis said:

"I defy him to produce any person to show I attempted to bring about changes that would weaken the workmen's compensation law. On the contrary, under my administration, occupational diseases were added to the compensation list and in my message to the assembly I asked that no changes be made that would weaken the law.

"The present governor promised to take politics out of the welfare department. The disgraceful summary dismissal of Mrs. Mae Stannard as head of the girls' industrial home at Delaware through trumped-up charges that a political obligation might be fulfilled is an indication of how politics was removed there.

"He promised to take politics out of the agricultural department. How thoroughly this was done is shown by the fact that when delegates to the state Democratic convention went to Columbus last summer each received with his convention credentials, a pair of passes to the Ohio State fair. My attitude on this is that the street fair should be free for all and that should pay and that there should be no discrimination.

Republican Pledges Redeemed. "He promised cheaper roads. Hard surfaced roads in Ohio now are costing $34,000 a mile as compared with $30,000 a mile under the Republican administration. He threatened to resign if a road in Ohio cost as much as $70,000 a mile during his administration. A road now under construction in Cuyahoga county is costing $105,000 a mile and we hear nothing of a resignation.

"He promised to protect society by keeping incarcerated all hardened crooks and criminals. In a year and a half he pardoned 122 such criminals as compared with 38 during the preceding Republican administration.

"In 1920 the Republican party in Ohio made certain pledges and promises to the people. Every pledge was redeemed to the letter. I maintain that a campaign promise is a sacred obligation that must be redeemed and that those who fail to make an effort to keep a campaign promise should be removed from places of public trust for all time. The present governor has kept none of the promises made in his campaigns of two and four years ago and now he fails to respond to the demand that he appear before the people with an explanation of his conduct of the state's affairs.

Glad to Face People.

"If the main issue in this campaign is a comparison of our administration with that of the incumbent we welcome the comparison. We are glad to appear before the people, look them in the eye, tell them what we have accomplished and what we propose to do in the future. We have asked that the governor do likewise, present the story of his administration to the people and let the voters decide which administration has served them best and which is entitled to their confidence now. We have been prepared to let the people decide the case on its merits, but the governor says he must remain at his desk in Columbus and not neglect his duties. He did not hesitate to leave his desk for months in 1920 when he was state auditor and campaign up and down Ohio for the governorship.

"In the past year and a half, there have been 'whisperings' that perhaps there had been something wrong under my administration—something that I feared because I did not become a candidate to succeed myself. Well, I am a candidate. I have nothing to fear and am glad to tell the story of the accomplishments of my administration and want the governor to do the same.

"Let the people know direct what these administrations have done for Ohio and then let the people decide which shall direct the state's affairs for the coming two years.

Bowler Named

people who were attracted by the smooth scheme and invested their money. Hundreds of farmers, especially in the southern section of the Panhandle below Wheeling and farther east of Fairmont, and scores of women, had their names on the so-called "sucker" list. Ohioans also bought freely of the stock.

Loaned Money to Themselves.

The company first organized with a capital of $250,000, giving Bowler a contract for his entire services, his fee for the first year to be $7,500, and for the four succeeding years a salary of $1,000 a year. Early after the organization the state auditor's department realizing that this sum represented about 4 per cent of the working capital of the company informed the concern that readjustment must be made. The change was made as per state's request, at a meeting of the board of directors held January 21, 1923, and a new contract presented Bowler, calling for $4,500. The state's audit shows, however, that the contract was tampered with and changed to $4,500 before formal presentation to the department.

Both Ulyatt and Bowler are charged with exceeding authority given them by the board of directors, making loans and monies to themselves or companies in which they were interested, other than the local Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage and the Belmont Securities, on open accounts with security as to bring about the present condition of the defunct organization.

A total of $750,000 of the stock was subscribed and $277,000 paid for.

STRAIGHT-FROM-SHOULDER BLOWS BY EVANGELIST W. E. BIEDERWOLF

Don't blame God if you wake up some time and find yourself a pall bearer at your own funeral.

There never was a time when the world needed the church as it does today and for church members who will not betray it by a failure to live up to what it stands for.

The church is suffering from spiritual locomotor ataxia and an apathetic curvature of the spine.

If Christians put their obligations first in all things this world would be deluged with a consciousness of Christ.

It is queer how Christians do things their hearts tell them not to do and then try to justify their actions.

Two many Christians sell out at the first offer. And it is mighty little they sell when they do.

The average politician hasn't any more conscience than a graveyard ghoul or any more heart than a Tennessee rattlesnake.

God wants both the individual and the nation to be true.

If East Liverpool churchmen were loyal to their tenets there would be a quick lifting up hereabouts of the kingdom of righteousness.

You can not drink of the cup of the devil and also of the cup of the Lord and be a Christian. You have to stick to the latter to be genuine.

Christians, keeping their stores open on Sunday, cannot justify themselves because a business rival does the same. You haven't the right to do likewise because he chooses to drink of the devil's cup.

The devil who makes so many of you go his way here will not get much when you finally join him.

I propose to make it so hot for church members who do not pay their debts that they will have to wear asbestos suits.

Any merchant will give any debtor all the time he needs if he but shows a disposition to try and pay his debts.

Were I not a Christian I would knock four kinds of pork and two assortments of dog from a skiffin' deacon hiring a washerwoman for 75 cents a day and charging her 25 cents for dinner.

Employers cannot pray for their employees on the Lord's day and pray on them the rest of the week.

Employees, soldiering on their jobs, are taking what does not belong to them.

Many men can make a howling success of business and be a rotten failure in his character.

I like to see people dress up—and all the way up.

I don't like to see men and women go daffy on frappe and high jinks in high rolling, high class society.

A Georgia man, deploring diaphanous dressing shadow spilt skirts and tight form décolleté, averred that with the women dancing the "tango," "turkey trot," "Texas Tommy," "Bunny Hug," "the ball weavil glide" and the "buzzard flog," men should get back their saloons and all go to hell together.

If American does not soon cry a halt to its social craze it will follow the way of Rome, Greece and ancient Egypt to destruction.

God pity the Christian home that can not get along without a deck of cards.

A young girl, asking what she would do without dancing and playing cards, I replied: "Bless your little heart, I don't know."

If one has not enough mentality to get along without cards and dancing then doubtless life must be expressed through fingers and toes.

There is no domestic trouble that the spirit of Christ will not heal.

If incompatible husbands and wives would but get down by each other and pray they would rise up and kiss each other.

The Bible is tooth and toe nail against divorce.

"Eleven" times out "ten" the cause of marital infelicity and incompatibility is lustful infatuation by husband or wife for some other man's wife or husband.

The world has a right to expect a better standard of living from Christians.

Churchmen and women go to the same places as the world, do the same things as the world and the world rightly sees no difference in them.

SHAVINGS AND SAWDUST FOUND IN DR. BIEDERWOLF'S TABERNACLE

Delegations from potteries and nearby towns will come to the tabernacle in numbers next week.

On Wednesday night Wellsville will send its first contingent to the revival. These will come from various churches of the city. Plans for this visit have been prepared for some time.

On Wednesday night also will come the employees of Homer Laughlin China Co. (East End), The Smith & Phillips pottery and the C. C. Thompson Co.

On Thursday night will come those employed at the Edwin M. Knowles and the Homer Laughlin China Co. Nos. 4, 5 and 6 of Newell, W. Va.

On Friday night, the Taylor, Smith and Taylor, plant will send a big delegation.

The Edwin M. Knowles pottery of Chester will send a contingent on Friday night.

All these delegations will meet at the Y. M. C. A. in East Liverpool where formation will be made and the line of march taken to the tabernacle. In all instances a band will head the marchers.

Members of the Kiwanis club of East Liverpool will go in a body to the tabernacle on Next Wednesday night. Deeply impressed by the address of Dr. Biederwolf at their meeting on Thursday noon, the members quickly agreed to visit the revival and again hear the evangelist.

Two great services, marked by enthusiasm and keen interest, were held by the evangelistic party in the Chester and East Liverpool high schools on Friday. All the members of the party were in attendance at both, except Mr. Bennett, who failed to be at the local school because of a shop meeting.

The party went to Chester in the morning and the High school gathered in one of the rooms of the building. Mr. McEwan sang several catchy songs before Dr. Biederwolf spoke. Both were given a big reception by the pupils.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the party were presented to the East Liverpool High school by Miss Updegraff, the principal. McEwan, as in Chester, charmed his young hearers with his appealing singing. In conclusion he and Mr. Heaton sang a duet, and then Dr. Biederwolf spoke briefly to the pupils.

As a mark of their appreciation of the visit the High School football team invited the party to attend the annual gridiron contest with Lisbon on Patterson Field on Saturday afternoon which was promptly accepted. Accordingly the party left the building with the big game tickets dangling on their coats.

The shop meetings on Friday were well attended and enthusiastic services held. At the T. S. & T. plant in Chester, W. Va., Miss Davis and Mr. Heaton of the evangelistic party were in charge. The former spoke and the latter sang. Rev. Fred Bennett spoke at the meeting at the C. C. Thompson plant.

There will be no morning meeting at the tabernacle on Sunday. In the afternoon the meeting will be for men, the subject being, "The White Life." At the same time in the First Presbyterian Church Miss Wilma Davis will speak to women, her theme being, "The Rose of Sharon." Both of these meetings will be at 2:30 o'clock. In the evening at 7:30 o'clock in the tabernacle Dr. Biederwolf will preach on "The Wages of Sin." This meeting will be for everybody.

The Family Worship League of which Dr. Biederwolf is an official member, he announced on Friday night, had 63,000 members. Its purpose is to restore home worship in American families.

Several wagon loads of ashes have been hauled to the tabernacle and the contents distributed at the base of its walls where, in the cleaning up process necessary to the erection of the structure some crevices had been made, enabling some wind to enter. This now obviated, plus the additional stoves, enables proper temperature to be maintained.

Dr. Biederwolf, referring to the tabernacle in his preliminary talks, frequently dubs it, "The Pine Temple."

The big 500 voice choir will sing in both the men's meeting in the afternoon on Sunday and also in the one for everyone Sunday night. Mr. McEwan will also sing in both gatherings.

Cottage Prayer meeting chairmen will make a report to Rev. A. H. O'Brien at the meeting on Saturday night.

Women of the Co-operating churches, meeting at the First Presbyterian church, will march

Miss Davis will address the grammar school pupils at the tabernacle at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning. Miss Davis has devoted much time to an arrangement of Bible studies by charts and will have an original approach to scriptural truths in all her addresses. Her afternoon class at the tabernacle has started off nicely. With the beginning of Dr. Biederwolf's afternoon sermons her teaching will begin at the conclusion of his discourse.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The stock market lapsed into dullness in the short session today. Oil and railroad stocks made up the bulk of transactions and prices of active issues showed little change from yesterday's closing prices. Marland Oil was reactionary on reports that a $2,000,000 note issue was needed to finance stored oil and to provide for other immediate requirements. Standard Oil issues were slightly irregular. But Coudren, Pure Oil, Shell Union and Sinclair were inclined to fractionally higher levels.

Week-end business reviews were favorable, though noting pre-election hesitation. The speculative markets were in a waiting mood, stocks feeling the withdrawal of large traders for the week end and an cotton awaiting the publication of the government's most important crop report of the season.

Interest returned to the low priced rails, with St. Paul common and preferred featuring a moderate advance; Frisco common in new high ground at 32 1/2; New Haven a point higher at 26 1/2; Rock Island, Katy, Missouri Pacific and Seaboard Air Line fractionally higher. Chicago and Eastern Illinois common was up 2 points at 32 1/2, while the preferred gained 3/4 at 46 1/2.

Cast Iron Pipe made a new high record for the year at 117 1/2 at the head of a strong movement in specialty stocks, in which Colorado Fuel also participated. Bethlehem Steel made a little more improvement. American Woolen was subjected to heavy selling and declined sharply to 5 1/2, for a loss of 1 1/2, and a decline to within a fraction of the lowest price for the year. Congoleum lost about 2 1/2 points at 42 1/2.

night's service at the tabernacle. "This is one of our most interesting services," Dr. Biederwolf explained. "We hold it for about 15 minutes in all our campaigns. You are all to march and sing as we go up town to hear Rev. Mr. Bennett speak."

Committee meetings in various sections of the tabernacle followed the sermon. Dr. Biederwolf addressing one of men, Miss Davis another and Mr. Heaton two or three. Details for the ensuing moves of the campaign were enlarged and the plans widened to culminate in compact, mutual attack upon the forces of evil.

Forceful Sermon.

Vigorous and forceful, despite his two addresses to Chester and East Liverpool, Dr. Biederwolf plunged into his sermon with accustomed vigor. "Church folk too frequently ascribe to themselves an unwarrantable liberty in their actions for which they attempt to justify themselves," he said. They do it in the political, business, social and domestic worlds.

It is a mistake to think one can not excel in all these lines and be a Christian.

Would you be a politician? It is a holy calling. You can take Christ with you in it. You do not have to have the blasphemous sanction of infidelity to make you a success in it. "Would you be a business man? There is the touch of divinity about business and factory work. You do not have to be and steal in it. There, too, you can take Christ.

"Would you go in for society? You ought to. But you should shine for Jesus Christ in your social doings. Knowing that no finger of aspersions can be pointed at you and no lowering of a community's morals would follow any of your actions.

Shun Cup of Devil. "Would you have domestic felicity in your home, then shun the cup of the devil and substitute that of the Lord's in all your relations.

"Man these activities in which you may turn take a motto of four words: 'In the beginning God.' With God with us in the beginning of our various human relationships, we will be with us always in them and finally, and even as important, in the end of them. There is no use to preach unless we walk as we preach."

Dr. Biederwolf derided the evil conditions of political life which frequently appeals by its hideousness of human greed and selfishness; inveighed against the tactics of business that brooks nothing short of constant gain no matter how produced; portrayed glowingly the froth foam and piffle of the usual social activities and analyzed the real cause of much of the domestic lack of harmonious living. Jesus Christ, His ethics and love, he asserted, was the only panacea for success in all of them.

"People of God," he concluded, "if you ring true, if you live up to your church obligations, thus making a difference between Christianity and the world, a new city will arise from the ashes of this tabernacle when its use will be over and the structure taken down. But you must live up to your professions. You can't be a Christian and drink the devil's cup as Paul declared the Corinthians did.

"There are a lot of things to be proud of in this city and a lot of things to be ashamed of. I shall tell you about them tomorrow night when I speak on 'What is the matter with East Liverpool?'" cision to defer consideration of the measure.

Councilmen Chambers sponsored a motion, calling for a meeting of council at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, presumably for the purpose of placing the special police and second street improvement ordinance on second reading. However, inasmuch as the motion made no mention of "special meeting," it was intimated the session would be merely an adjourned meeting. In this event, action on the two ordinances will not be in order.

Protests Pour in As Press Reveals Income Tax Returns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Harrassed by an avalanche of complaints and besieged with a flood of requests for enlightenment, government officials were still groping around here today in a maze of uncertainty and confusion over the publication of income tax returns.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his principal aides, believing that publication of the returns is illegal, nevertheless took the ground that enforcement of the law is not up to the treasury department, but to the department of justice.

So far as the treasury is concerned, the matter is a closed incident, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair said.

"The bureau of internal revenue explicitly outlined its position in telegrams to collectors advising that a provision of the revised statutes makes it unlawful to publish any income tax returns," Blair said.

"If this law has been violated it is up to the department of justice to act, see no necessity of the treasury for attorney general's fact."

Wall of Secrecy Around Undermyer's Reported Bombshell

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—An impenetrable wall of secrecy was erected and maintained today by the Borah investigating committee about a story of Republican campaign expenditures, which Samuel Undermyer, attorney of Senator Robert M. La Follette, promises to be the most sensational yet produced in connection with the "slush fund" charges.

"Two men from Chicago," will tell the story to the committee, according to Undermyer, but he would not put them on the stand for examination without first relating their story to Senator Borah and the other investigators in a secret session. Their testimony, Undermyer said, would probably have a disastrous effect, and it was for that reason that he declined, he explained, to have the story "spread before the country" before he committee was given an opportunity to obtain corroborative evidence of the new charges which are so made.

Ulster Departs De Valera After Visit to Newry

BELFAST, Oct. 25.—Eamon De Valera, head of the Irish Republicans, who was arrested when he visited Newry in defiance of Ulster's orders, was deported today. He was sent across the border into the Irish Free State after promising he would not return.

According to a dispatch from Dublin, De Valera arrived there shortly before noon. Official announcement was made that De Valera will be interned if he tries to return to Newry. The situation in Newry is quiet.

politics and stressed Davis' appointment of women to state offices.

Mr. Davis' Speech.

While it is my purpose tonight to discuss national issues for you have already heard them ably discussed, I want the people of East Liverpool and of all Ohio to know that my first interest in this campaign and the interest of every candidate on the state ticket is that our president, Calvin Coolidge, be elected next month.

"Every day and night of this campaign I have repeatedly pronounced that I shall support President Coolidge and have been asking that all Ohio voters do the same. All right thinking people will agree with me that they should be told what presidential candidate the head of the state ticket favors.

In this connection I would like to ask what candidate for president my opponent in the governorship race is supporting. The nominations were made long since, the presidential candidates are in the field and yet not a word has been heard from the governor of Ohio on his candidate. The voters are entitled to know which of the three presidential candidates he is supporting.

"For weeks we have been trying to get the governor to go before the people and tell them, face to face, what he has accomplished in his administration and given an accounting of his stewardship. He has failed to do so.

"But we have him giving a radio speech which someone prepared for him. Still he explains none of the things we have asked him to explain. He uses the radio to evade questions regarding his regime.

"But now that he consents to speak to the public from behind closed doors, let him tell the people of Ohio which candidate for president he supports.

"Has the Democratic candidate for president, John W. Davis, said or done anything that makes it impossible for the candidate for governor to come out openly and support him? The people know who is my candidate for president. Surely they are entitled to know who is the candidate of the Democratic nominee for governor.

Raps Donahy's Address.

Charging Gov. Donahy's statements made in a radio speech Thursday night were fabrications, Mr. Davis said:

"I defy him to produce any person to show I attempted to bring about changes that would weaken the workmen's compensation law. On the contrary, under my administration, occupational diseases were added to the compensation list and in my message to the assembly I asked that no changes be made that would weaken the law.

"The present governor promised to take politics out of the welfare department. The disgraceful summary dismissal of Mrs. Mae Stannard as head of the girls' industrial home at Delaware through trumped-up charges that a political obligation might be fulfilled is an indication of how politics was removed there.

"He promised to take politics out of the agricultural department. How thoroughly this was done is shown by the fact that when delegates to the state Democratic convention went to Columbus last summer each received with his convention credentials, a pair of passes to the Ohio State fair. My attitude on this is that the street fair should be free for all or that all should pay and that there should be no discrimination.

Republican Pledges Redeemed.

"He promised cheaper roads. Hard surfaced roads in Ohio now are costing $34,000 a mile as compared with $30,000 a mile under the Republican administration. He threatened to resign if a road in Ohio cost as much as $70,000 a mile during his administration. A road now under construction in Cuyahoga county is costing $195,000 a mile and we hear nothing of a resignation.

"He promised to protect society by keeping incarcerated all hardened crooks and criminals. In a year and a half he pardoned 123 such criminals as compared with 38 during the preceding Republican administration.

"In 1920 the Republican party in Ohio made certain pledges and promises to the people. Every pledge was redeemed to the letter. I maintain that a campaign promise is a sacred obligation that must be redeemed and that those who fail to make an effort to keep a campaign promise should be removed from places of public trust for all time. The present governor has kept none of the promises made in his campaigns of two and four years ago and now he fails to respond to the demand that he appear before the people with an explanation of his conduct of the state's affairs.

Glad to Face People.

"If the main issue in this campaign is a comparison of our administration with that of the incumbent we welcome the comparison. We are glad to appear before the people, look them in the eye, tell them what we have accomplished and what we propose to do in the future. We have asked that the governor do likewise, present the story of his administration to the people and let the voters decide which administration has served them best and which is entitled to their confidence now. We have been prepared to let the people decide the case on its merits, but the governor says he must remain at his desk in Columbus and not neglect his duties. He did not hesitate to leave his desk for months in 1920 when he was state auditor and campaign up and down Ohio for the governorship.

"In the past year and a half, there have been 'whisperings' that perhaps there had been something wrong under my administration—something that I feared because I did not become a candidate to succeed myself. Well, I am a candidate. I have nothing to fear and am glad to tell the story of the accomplishments of my administration and want the governor to do the same.

"Let the people know direct what these administrations have done for Ohio and then let the people decide which shall direct the state's affairs for the coming two years.

Bowdler Named

people who were attracted by the smooth scheme and invested their money. Hundreds of farmers, especially in the southern section of the Panhandle below Wheeling and farther east of Fairmont, and scores of women, had their names on the so-called "sucker" list. Obloans also bought freely of the stock.

Loaned Money to Themselves.

The company first organized with a capital of $250,000, giving Bowdler a contract for his entire services, his fee for the first year to be $7,500, and for the four succeeding years a salary of $10,000 a year. Early after the organization the state auditor's department realizing that this sum represented about 4 per cent of the working capital of the company informed the concern that readjustment must be made. The change was made as per state's request, at a meeting of the board of directors held January 21, 1923, and a new contract presented Bowdler, calling for $4,500. The state's audit shows, however, that the contract was tampered with and changed to $4,500 before formal presentation to the department.

Both Ulyatt and Bowdler are charged with exceeding authority given them by the board of directors, making loans and monies to themselves of companies in which they were interested, other than the local Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage and the Belmont Securities, on open accounts with security as to bring about the present condition of the defunct organization.

A total of $750,000 of the stock was subscribed and $377,000 paid for.

when the shot which ended his life rang out. STRAIGHT-FROM-SHOULDER BLOWS BY EVANGELIST W. E. BIEDERWOLF

Don't blame God if you wake up some time and find yourself a pall bearer at your own funeral.

There never was a time when the world needed the church as it does today and for church members who will not betray it by a failure to live up to what it stands for.

The church is suffering from spiritual locomotor ataxia and an apathetic curvature of the spine.

If Christians put their obligations first in all things this world would be deluged with a consciousness of Christ.

It is queer how Christians do things their hearts tell them not to do and then try to justify their actions.

Two many Christians sell out at the first offer. And it is mighty little they sell when they do.

The average politician hasn't any more conscience than a graveyard ghoul or any more heart than a Tennessee rattlesnake.

God wants both the individual and the nation to be true.

If East Liverpool churchmen were loyal to their tenets there would be a quick lifting up hereabouts of the kingdom of righteousness.

You can not drink of the cup of the devil and also of the cup of the Lord and be a Christian. You have to stick to the latter to be genuine.

Christians, keeping their stores open on Sunday, cannot justify themselves because a business rival does the same. You haven't the right to do likewise because he chooses to drink of the devil's cup.

The devil who makes so many of you go his way here will not get much when you finally join him.

I propose to make it so hot for church members who do not pay their debts that they will have to wear asbestos suits.

Any merchant will give any debtor all the time he needs if he but shows a disposition to try and pay his debts.

Were I not a Christian I would knock four kinds of pork and two assortments of dog from a skunklin' deacon hiring a washerwoman for 75 cents a day and charging her 25 cents for dinner.

Employers cannot pray for their employees on the Lord's day and pray on them the rest of the week.

Employees, soldiering on their jobs, are taking what does not belong to them.

Many men can make a howling success of business and be a rotten failure in his character.

I like to see people dress up—and all the way up.

I don't like to see men and women go daffy on frappe and high jinks in high rolling, high class society.

A Georgia man, deploring diaphanous dressing shadow split skirts and tight form decollete, averred that with the women dancing the "tango," "turkey trot," "Texas Tommy," "Bunny Hug," "The boll weevil glide" and the "buzzard flog," men should get back their saloons and all go to hell together.

If American does not soon cry a halt to its social craze it will follow the way of Rome, Greece and ancient Egypt to destruction.

God pity the Christian home that can not get along without a deck of cards.

A young girl, asking what she would do without dancing and playing cards, I replied: "Bless your little heart, I don't know."

If one has not enough mentality to get along without cards and dancing then doubtless life must be expressed through fingers and toes.

There is no domestic trouble that the spirit of Christ will not heal.

If incompatible husbands and wives would but get down by each other and pray they would rise up and kiss each other.

The Bible is tooth and toe nail against divorce.

"Eleven" times out "ten" the cause of marital infelicity and incompatibility is lustful infatuation by husband or wife for some other man's wife or husband.

The world has a right to expect a better standard of living from Christians.

Churchmen and women go to the same places as the world, do the same things as the world and the world rightly sees no difference in them.

SHAVINGS AND SAWDUST FOUND IN DR. BIEDERWOLF'S TABERNACLE

Delegations from potteries and nearby towns will come to the tabernacle in numbers next week.

On Wednesday night Wellsville will send its first contingent to the revival. These will come from various churches of the city. Plans for this visit have been prepared for some time.

On Wednesday night also will come the employees of Homer Laughlin China Co. (East End), The Smith & Phillips pottery and the C. C. Thompson Co.

On Thursday night will come those employed at the Edwin M. Knowles and the Homer Laughlin China Co. Nos. 4, 5 and 6 of Newell, W. Va.

On Friday night, the Taylor, Smith and Taylor, plant will send a big delegation.

The Edwin M. Knowles pottery of Chester will send a contingent on Friday night.

All these delegations will meet at the Y. M. C. A. in East Liverpool where formation will be made and the line of march taken to the tabernacle. In all instances a band will head the marches.

Members of the Kiwanis club of East Liverpool will go in a body to the tabernacle on Next Wednesday night. Deeply impressed by the address of Dr. Biederwolf at their meeting on Thursday noon, the members quickly agreed to visit the revival and again hear the evangelist.

Two great services, marked by enthusiasm and keen interest, were held by the evangelistic party in the Chester and East Liverpool high schools on Friday. All the members of the party were in attendance at both, except Mr. Bennett, who failed to be at the local school because of a shop meeting.

The party went to Chester in the morning and the High school gathered in one of the rooms of the building. Mr. McEwan sang several catchy songs before Dr. Biederwolf spoke. Both were given a big reception by the pupils.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the party were presented to the East Liverpool High school by Miss Updegraff, the principal. McEwan, as in Chester, charmed his young hearers with his appealing singing. In conclusion he and Mr. Heaton sang a duet, and then Dr. Biederwolf spoke briefly to the pupils.

As a mark of their appreciation of the visit the High School football team invited the party to attend the annual gridiron contest with Lisbon on Patterson Field on Saturday afternoon which was promptly accepted. Accordingly the party left the building with the big game tickets dangling on their coats.

The shop meetings on Friday were well attended and enthusiastic services held. At the T. S. & T. plant in Chester, W. Va., Miss Davis and Mr. Heaton of the evangelistic party were in charge. The former spoke and the latter sang. Rev. Fred Bennett spoke at the meeting at the C. C. Thompson plant.

There will be no morning meeting at the tabernacle on Sunday. In the afternoon the meeting will be for men, the subject being, "The White Life." At the same time in the First Presbyterian Church Miss Wilma Davis will speak to women, her theme being, "The Rose of Sharon." Both of these meetings will be at 2:30 o'clock. In the evening at 7:30 o'clock in the tabernacle Dr. Biederwolf will preach on "The Wages of Sin." This meeting will be for everybody.

The Family Worship league of which Dr. Biederwolf is an official member, he announced on Friday night, had 63,000 members. Its purpose is to restore home worship in American families.

Several wagon loads of ashes have been hauled to the tabernacle and the contents distributed at the base of its walls where, in the cleaning up process necessary to the erection of the structure some crevices had been made, enabling some wind to enter. This now obliterated, plus the additional stoves, enables proper temperature to be maintained.

Dr. Biederwolf, referring to the tabernacle in his preliminary talks, frequently dubs it, "The Pine Temple."

The big 500 voice choir will sing in both the men's meeting in the afternoon on Sunday and also in the one for everyone Sunday night. Mr. McEwan will also sing in both gatherings.

Cottage Prayer meeting chairmen will make a report to Rev. A. H. O'Brien at the meeting on Saturday night.

Women of the Co-operating churches, meeting at the First Presbyterian church, will march

Miss Davis will address the grammar school pupils at the tabernacle at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning. Miss Davis has devoted much time to an arrangement of Bible studies by charts and will have an original approach to scriptural truths in all her addresses. Her afternoon class at the tabernacle has started off nicely. With the beginning of Dr. Biederwolf's afternoon sermons her teaching will begin at the conclusion of his discourse.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The stock market lapsed into dullness in the short session today. Oil and railroad stocks made up the bulk of transactions and prices of active issues showed little change from yesterday's closing prices. Marland Oil was reactionary on reports that a $2,000,000 note issue was needed to finance stored oil and to provide for other immediate requirements. Standard Oil issues were slightly irregular. But Coston, Pure Oil, Shell Union and Sinclair were inclined to fractionally higher levels.

Week-end business reviews were favorable, though noting pre-election hesitation. The speculative markets were in a waiting mood, stocks feeling the withdrawal of large traders for the week end and a cotton awaiting the publication of the government's most important crop report of the season. Interest returned to the low priced rails, with St. Paul common and preferred featuring a moderate advance. Frisco common in new high ground at 32½; New Haven a point higher at 32½; Rock Island, Katy, Missouri Pacific and Seaboard Air Line fractionally higher. Chicago and Eastern Illinois common was up 2 points at 32½, while the preferred gained 3¼ at 46½.

Cast Iron Pipe made a new high record for the year at 117½ at the head of a strong movement in specialty stocks, in which Colorado Fuel also participated. Bethlehem Steel made a little more improvement. American Woolen was subjected to heavy selling and declined sharply to 5½, for a loss of 1½, and a decline to within a fraction of the lowest price for the year. Congoleum lost about 2½ points at 42½.

night's service at the tabernacle.

"This is one of our most interesting services," Dr. Biederwolf explained.

"We hold it for about 15 minutes in all our campaigns. You are all to march and sing as we go up town to hear Rev. Mr. Bennett speak."

Committee meetings in various sections of the tabernacle followed the sermon. Dr. Biederwolf addressing one of men, Miss Davis another and Mr. Heaton two or three. Details for the ensuing moves of the campaign were enlarged and the plans widened to culminate in compact, mutual attack upon the forces of evil.

Forceful Sermon.

Vigorous and forceful, despite his two addresses to Chester and East Liverpool, Dr. Biederwolf plunged into his sermon with accustomed vigor.

"Church folk too frequently ascribe to themselves an unwarrantable liberty in their actions for which they attempt to justify themselves," he said. They do it in the political, business, social and domestic worlds.

It is a mistake to think one can not excel in all these lines and be a Christian.

Would you be a politician? It is a holy calling. You can take Christ with you in it. You do not have to have the blasphemous sanction of infidelity to make you a success in it. "Would you be a business man? There is the touch of divinity about business and factory work. You do not have to be and steal in it. There, too, you can take Christ.

"Would you go in for society? You ought to. But you should shine for Jesus Christ in your social doings. Knowing that no finger of aspersions can be pointed at you and no lowering of a community's morals would follow any of your actions.

Shun Cup of Devil.

"Would you have domestic felicity in your homes, then shun the cup of the devil and substitute that of the Lord's in all your relations.

PERCY TETLOW GIVES ADDRESS

Plays Third Party Policies in G. O. P. Rally Here.

National and state issues at stake in the impending November election were discussed by Percy Tetlow, of the United Mine Workers of America, and Mrs. Moser Place, of Michigan, Friday night in the first, last and only general rally of the campaign held by Republicans in Wellsville. The meeting took place in the auditorium of the high school, in Center street.

F. L. Wells, of this city, was chairman of the national speakers' bureau, who was followed to the stage by Percy Tetlow, national statistician for the mine workers.

Mrs. Place discussed only national issues, chiefly tariff. Both national and state questions were taken up by Mr. Tetlow in his brief address, pointing out the benefits of the public protective tariff, enumerating advantages from the standpoint of the workingman.

He urged that voters turn thumbs down on third party policies, among which, he charged, was that which threatened the very constitution of the United States by the elimination of the supreme court and the transfer of its powers to congress.

He lauded the administration of former Governor Harry L. Davis, discussing issues intimately as a result of his experiences while head of industrial relations in the Davis cabinet.

Former Governor Davis was unable to reach the city in time to speak at the local meeting. He arrived late in Salem and after a short address rushed to East Liverpool for his second talk of the evening.

George Imbrie, local vocalist, gave several selections, accompanied by Mrs. Lester Donnelly.

MRS. IDA BOVER, AGED 50, IS DEAD

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Ida Bover, 50 years old, which occurred on Friday morning at her home in Pittsburgh. She was a former resident of this city, having been born and reared here. She was a resident of Pittsburgh for 31 years.

She is survived by a son and one daughter, Howard and Myrtle of Pittsburgh, with whom she made her home. One brother, C. F. Eppler of Wellsville, and a sister, Margaret, of Pittsburgh, are living also.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, 1922 Lincoln avenue, Pittsburgh. Burial will be made in a Pittsburgh cemetery.

Student Files Suit.

Miss Faye Smith, of Salineville, last year a student of Ohio university at Athens, has filed suit against Dwight Shoemaker of Marion asking for $50,000 damage because he was driving a car that was wrecked and in which the girl was a passenger.

The action was brought by Miss Smith's mother who avers Shoemaker was reckless in his driving and was responsible for the accident.

FEAR ENGINEER'S SPINE INJURED

Homer Bush, engineer of the C. & P. railroad train which was wrecked Tuesday evening at Allkanna, two members of the crew losing their lives, has entered the Ohio Valley General hospital at Wheeling for medical treatment. It is feared his spine was injured.

At first Bush believed he was only bruised and aided in the work of getting his two comrades, Fireman DeMarr Myers and Brakeman Samuel Green away from the overturned engine. Returning to his home Bush suffered a relapse.

A thorough investigation into the cause of the derailling of the tender has been started by Jefferson County Coroner Bell and officials of the Pennsylvania railroad from the Philadelphia offices.

ATTEND MEET OF TEACHERS

Charles Stokes, principal at the Central school building and Mrs. Lila Riley Davis, of the high school teaching staff, are delegates from the Wellsville schools to the fall meeting of the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association which is under way Saturday in Cambridge.

LUTHERANS ANNOUNCE EXPANSION OF EVANGELICAL WORK TOWARD ARCTIC

Chicago Convention's Attention Directed to Fact Church Has Entered Alaska as New Field for Missionary Effort.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Expansion of evangelical effort toward the Arctic Circle on the north and the Mexican border on the south is announced today by the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the United Lutheran Church in America. The fact that the church has just entered Alaska as a new field for missionary work was called to the attention of the biennial convention of the Lutherans in session at the Edgewater Beach hotel here.

The first evangelical stakes in the great American territory of the north-west have been driven at Jeanneau and other towns have found ready for Lutheran occupancy. In some of these Alaskan communities more than half of the Protestant population is Lutheran.

The great prairie provinces of the Canadian west with their fertile fields and swiftly growing cities are attracting rapidly increasing numbers of Lutheran settlers who are calling for Lutheran field secretaries, missionaries and pastors.

About 60 per cent of the Immigration from Europe to America under the new quota law is coming from populations where the Lutheran church is the dominant religious organization. It follows that this influx of selected Nordic stock from northern Europe upon which acquisition America is now priding itself, throws an added burden upon the resources of the United Lutheran Church in America. This has been felt all over the country.

Immigrant accessions in Texas have forced the Lutherans to greater efforts which include the establishment of field missionaries with centers at Houston and Dallas.

A large percentage of the remarkable increase in Florida's population is coming from northern and eastern states where the United Lutheran Church is strong. This has demanded greater missionary effort.

Shifting of cotton-mill operatives from New England to North Carolina attract large numbers of Lutherans to the southern state. This has called for augmented missionary effort there.

Not merely in these suburban and rural districts, but in the crowded centers of population throughout the country, the Lutherans find challenging opportunities for missionary effort. The board asserts that "every dollar of our income would be expended and every available man used for the next two years in the metropolitan sections where the United Lutheran Church has reasonably strong representation."

Householders of Belgium laid in such generous supplies of coal during the summer that the demand caused the price per ton to advance from $1 to $2.

The church will be dedicated at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Dr. J. H. Sloan of East Liverpool, district superintendent, will be the speaker. Special music will be rendered at the morning and afternoon sessions by a quartet from Sebring. Mrs. J. H. Sloan will preach at the evening service. The orchestra from the East Liverpool Nazarene church will play at the morning and evening services.

A social will be held Monday evening in the Grandview school in Grant district by pupils of the school. Proceeds will be used to purchase supplies for the school.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, at bed time.

PERCY TETLOW GIVES ADDRESS

Flays Third Party Policies in G. O. P. Rally Here.

National and state issues at stake in the impending November election were discussed by Percy Tetlow, of the United Mine Workers of America, and Mrs. Moser Place, of Michigan, Friday night in the first, last and only general rally of the campaign held by Republicans in Wellsville. The meeting took place in the auditorium of the high school, in Center street.

F. L. Wells, of this city, was chairman of the national speakers' bureau, who was followed to the stage by Percy Tetlow, national statistician for the mine workers.

Mrs. Place discussed only national issues, chiefly tariff. Both national and state questions were taken up by Mr. Tetlow in his brief address, pointing out the benefits of the public protective tariff, enumerating advantages from the standpoint of the workingman.

He urged that voters turn thumbs down on third party policies, among which, he charged, was that which threatened the very constitution of the United States by the elimination of the supreme court and the transfer of its powers to congress.

He lauded the administration of former Governor Harry L. Davis, discussing issues intimately as a result of his experiences while head of industrial relations in the Davis cabinet.

Former Governor Davis was unable to reach the city in time to speak at the local meeting. He arrived late in Salem and after a short address rushed to East Liverpool for his second talk of the evening.

George Imbrie, local vocalist, gave several selections, accompanied by Mrs. Lester Donnelly.

MRS. IDA BOVER, AGED 50, IS DEAD

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Ida Bover, 50 years old, which occurred on Friday morning at her home in Pittsburgh. She was a former resident of this city, having been born and reared here. She was a resident of Pittsburgh for 31 years.

She is survived by a son and one daughter, Howard and Myrtle of Pittsburgh, with whom she made her home. One brother, C. F. Eppler of Wellsville, and a sister, Margaret, of Pittsburgh, are living also.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, 1922 Lincoln avenue, Pittsburgh. Burial will be made in a Pittsburgh cemetery.

Student Files Suit. Miss Faye Smith, of Sallineville, last year a student of Ohio university at Athens, has filed suit against Dwight Shoemaker of Marion asking for $50,000 damage because he was driving a car that was wrecked and in which the girl was a passenger.

The action was brought by Miss Smith's mother who avers Shoemaker was reckless in his driving and was responsible for the accident.

FEAR ENGINEER'S SPINE INJURED

Homer Bush, engineer of the C. & P. railroad train which was wrecked Tuesday evening at Alikanna, two members of the crew losing their lives, has entered the Ohio Valley General hospital at Wheeling for medical treatment. It is feared his spine was injured.

At first Bush believed he was only bruised and aided in the work of getting his two comrades, Fireman Samuel Myers and brakeman Samuel Green away from the overturned engine. Returning to his home Bush suffered a relapse.

A thorough investigation into the cause of the derailing of the tender has been started by Jefferson County Coroner Bell and officials of the Pennsylvania railroad from the Philadelphia offices.

ATTEND MEET OF TEACHERS

Charles Stokes, principal at the Central school building and Mrs. Lila Riley Davis, of the high school teaching staff, are delegates from the Wellsville schools to the fall meeting of the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association which is under way Saturday in Cambridge.

Among the speakers appearing at the convention are Dr. Ruben Post Hallock, of Louisville, Ky., Dr. Payson Smith, state superintendent of public instruction, Boston; and Miss Margaret Maguire, principal of the McCall school, Philadelphia.

Canadian Immigrants

Our highly restrictive immigration law is working to the advantage of Canada. At least, that is the way Canada looks at the matter. The Dominion wants more population, and immigrants excluded from this country are turning thither.

There has been a remarkable stimulus to Canadian immigration in the last few months. Immigrants from Great Britain have increased one-third, and those from other countries, excepting the United States, have nearly doubled. There is a decrease from this country.

The gain, however, is really offset by the steady stream of Canadians pouring into the states. They are coming at the rate of 20,000 a month, which is more than all of Canada's European immigrants put together. Even if, as Canadian figures indicate, there are 4,000 former Canadians returning every month from this country, Canada seems to show a net immigration loss as a result of the drain to the states.

Thus there is a double loss to the Dominion, along with a sort of double gain to this country. The new immigrants in Canada are mostly of good stock, and are a welcome addition to the population, but still it takes time and effort to get them adjusted to Canadian life. The transition from Europe to Canada is more difficult than the transition from Canada to the United States. Canadians are the most easily assimilated of all foreigners who come here, and the most welcome. Canada seems to be fitting immigrants for this country. And with true liberality, she is giving us more of them than we receive from all the other nations together.

Less Red

Communism in Europe is waning. It was never so strong as superficial observers imagined. An English Socialist publication gives the total number of Communist parties outside of Russia in 1920 as 1,064,000, and as now reduced to 591,000. Membership has remained about stationary in Germany, but has shrunk in Czechoslovakia, France and other countries.

The cause of the shrinkage is plain enough. It is partly due to a continued demonstration that the Soviet form of Communism is not working well in Russia. It is more due, perhaps, to the fact that Europe generally is recovering. Communism, Socialism, Bolshevism and other forms of radical economic revolt, though originating perhaps in the minds of intellectuals as dispassionate theories, thrive only in bad times. They derive their power from poverty and discontent. Industrial depression puts fire under their boilers. Accordingly as prosperity returns and the normal "capitalistic" order is resumed, organized revolt loses its power.

That is why Communism never gained a foothold in the United States, and is not likely to in the immediate future, at least. This country is too prosperous, the prosperity is too widely diffused among the people and there is too much economic opportunity for all classes to provide much support for any Socialist or Communist movement.

The German Loan

Of the $200,000,000 loan required to oil the German economic machinery, the United States is taking $110,000,000. Two big American banking firms have assumed responsibility for marketing it, and some 300 lesser concerns will help with the distribution. The amount has been readily subscribed by friends of Germany and disinterested investors who regard the loan as a safe enough enterprise.

At the same time, it is observed that this loan, taken largely through good will, backed by the best security Germany can offer and carrying at least the moral guarantee of the league of nations and the leading allied powers, has to pay 7 per cent interest and is placed on the market at only 92 cents on the dollar. It is profitable to compare that with American loans. Uncle Sam's 4 per cent war bonds are selling well over par, and he has borrowed money lately around 3 per cent.

It is just another evidence of the wide gap between American and European credit.

CONSIDER JOE, CHIMPANZEE

Joe, aged chimpanzee, alleged member of a tribe whence sprang the Caucasian race, has known a moment of exaltation. His keeper, as usual, entered the cage to clean it. Joe, just for a change, swung his knotty, hairy black hand around, knocked the keeper senseless with ease, went out the open door and walked in the park. He stopped to exchange courtesies with his friend, John Barrett, 83-year-old park employee. Soon he was on his way back to the cage.

Learn that when you admire a prize fighter, you admire only a poor imitation of a chimpanzee, and a worse imitation of a gorilla, that could beat any 20 prize fighters in 40 seconds.

Learn also from Joe, the chimpanzee, that freedom depends not on how hard you can hit, but how well you can think. Radicals urging each other "to rise and throw off their chains" should study Joe, the chimpanzee. He rose, knocked down his keeper, and walked out of the cage, but he didn't know what to do next. "There's the rub."

HARD TO GET, HARD TO USE

George L. Brown, English worker in a Pittsburgh steel mill, invested $5 in a British lottery, won $42,500, is on his way to England. How long do you think he will keep the $42,500 or any of it?

On the other hand, Winchester, Va., sees a "bonded caretaker" and armed guards protecting the house of the late Miss Martha Shumate. The house is stuffed with money, greenbacks, gold coins, etc., behind pictures, under floors, in closets.

Some with money don't know how to keep it. Others with money don't know how to enjoy it or make it useful. A wise man said: "Some have meat that cannot eat. And some can eat that have no meat. But I have meat and I can eat, so God be great."

NOT NICKELS, BUT BILLIONS

General Dawes tells a crowd "to hold on to Coolidge," praising the president as a "close president who watches the nickels."

"Nickel nursing," as the slang of the day has it, is not the important work of a president. What the people want is a president that will watch the millions and the billions. Ordinary bookkeepers will take care of the nickels, in spite of the old proverb. Take care of the millions and billions, Mr. Coolidge. The nickels will take care of themselves.

LIVED AND DIED TOGETHER

Richard Gaffney, 70, and his wife, same age, lived together through good times and bad. But times got worse. Gaffney could work no longer as a boiler-maker, his wife could earn no money. Their last good friend died. Mrs. Gaffney said to a neighbor, "When we go, my husband and I will go together."

They went together on Tuesday. They turned on the gas.

A sad story, but there are young men and women, busy with their Paris divorces, that need not pity this old couple.

To live together up to 70 and then "go together," isn't so bad, as things go in this world.

Prince Caetani, Italian ambassador to the United States, will return to Italy, and on behalf of the Italian government and Mussolini will direct the draining of the Pontine marshes. On those marshes, covering 10,000 acres, live and breed the malaria carrying mosquitoes that have caused so many deaths and so much misery through centuries. How little the Romans imagined, as they fought the barbarians and conquered the old civilization, that their deadliest enemy was the tiny insect laying her eggs in the marsh waters.

Mussolini will be remembered forever with gratitude if he wipes out that death breeding plague spot.

WHO'S WHO

BRIGADIER GENERAL HUGH A. DRUM.

Youngest general officer of the whole army of the United States and responsible for all plans and training for the combined armies of the country. This is the distinction which attaches to Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum. He celebrated his forty-fifth birthday recently.

General Drum comes from a long line of fighting men, extending through several generations. His father, Captain John Drum, of the Tenth United States Infantry, was killed leading a charge in the battle of San Juan Hill, Cuba, in '98. He was the first officer killed in that battle.

Entering the army at the age of 20 as a second lieutenant, honors have come to General Drum rapidly and apparently easily.

From 1899 to 1901 he served in the Philippine Islands participating in the P. I. Insurrection. From 1912 to 1914 he was active on the Mexican border. Later he served as assistant instructor in military art at army schools and subsequently was aide to General Funston until the latter's death, February 19, 1917.

When General Pershing succeeded General Funston, General Drum became assistant to the chief of staff, and in that capacity accompanied General Pershing to France. The following year General Drum was appointed chief of staff of the first American army fighting on the western front. Although but a lieutenant colonel, he held a post usually assigned to a full major general.

About two years ago the army was without a textbook on higher command which incorporated the lessons that had been learned from the World War. The general staff called on General Drum, who in less than a month, had struck off the government presses two volumes printed in short pamphlet form which now constitute the standard text for the war college in Washington and all officers throughout the American army.

A few of the honors which have been conferred upon him are the Distinguished Service Medal from his own country, the Order of the Crown of Belgium, Commander of the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre and Commander of the Crown of Italy.

Indefatigable study is given as the principal reason for General Drum's brilliance and success. Born September 19, 1879, at Fort Brady, Mich., General Drum received his A. B. at Boston college 1898. In 1911 he was graduated an honor student from the army school of the line and the following year was graduated from the army staff college.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—For five years he had lived in the shadow of the death house at Sing Sing. The other day he walked out free. What little is left of his crumpled life is to be centered on his wife who stood steadfastly by him during the desolate travail.

I never realized before how gray prison walls break a man's spirit. In other days our paths crossed. Then he was a gay carefree fellow whose career stretched before him promisingly. He was vibrant and alive with the flush of youth. There was a spring to his step.

And I called on him in a shabby rooming house on St. Nicholas avenue. It seemed to me only the ashes remained. He spoke in a voice a shade above a whisper. His attitude was one of pathetic servility. His fingers had shrunk to bird-like claws.

There is a quotation from Burns which reads: "In duration vile here must I wake and weep, And all my frowzy couch in sorrow steep." His occasional efforts to smile were wisps of lugubrious grins. Free, he feared to go out on the street. At dusk I persuaded him to take a stroll. A full moon was flooding the streets. Not once did he look up.

I tried to tell him he must get a grip on himself. He owed much to his wife. "I'm completely beaten," he said. And with a shudder: "I am afraid." This man in an impulsive burst of anger had struck a friend and killed him. Drink was largely responsible.

Society had exacted its price. Yet somehow I could not help but feel that this fellow might have been spared the bitterness that is his. At his door, he said: "You've been kind, but it's no use. My life is as much over as though I were dead."

Next to the skyline the most colorful picture New York presents is Fifth avenue shop windows. Not another street presents such kaleidoscopic contrasts—painting, sculpture, jewelry, bronzes, antiques, pet dogs of 40 varieties, pop-eyed goldfish with tails three times as long as their bodies, the styles of famous designers, fine bindings, first editions, old silver, stamps, coins, hour glasses, and even the jinkle jumble of the five and ten.

Old Dan, the telescope man, a bit of professional gold turned to dross, had the surprise of his life while showing the stars at five cents per peep in Bryan park the other night. A man came up to behold the heavenly wonders. He presented a bill. Old Dan fumbled for change. "Keep it, Pop," said the patron. It was a brand new hundred dollar bill. And Dan has not been seen at his stand since. But the patron is there nightly looking for him. He thought it was a dollar.

Harry Kemp, the tramp poet, calls his home in the Village "The Oaks" because there is not an oak within a mile of it. In his neighborhood is Frank Shay's bookshop. Mary Vorse, the writer, lives nearby; so does Susan Glaspell, the playwright. It is a quiet section with a poet at every door, writing, and an artist at-top painting. The Village is the only spot left in New York with a general store and it is around the corner from Kemp's menage. There are cracker barrels where the Bohemians sit and spin tales of hopes and ambitions. Kemp's wife, a slight red-haired girl, is writing her first novel. Whatever may be said of the Village, it is rich and deep with color.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGELIER.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Now is the time for all good American students to be hurrying back to their books, and sometimes it is not such an easy matter, especially when one has been spending a long holiday in say Paris. That is, there is often a little financial embarrassment attached to the leaving. At present an epidemic of stranded Dartmouth students is raging in Paris. College students who were eager to see the Old World forgot to set aside enough dollars to take them back to the New World. "So you're from Dartmouth" has come to be the familiar greeting of the director of the aid society, for the young man in question usually fit.

The Parisian cooks are cross, and they have reason to be, it appears. The influx of foreigners in France has brought with it a curious mix-up of the hours for meals, so that from 11 in the morning until midnight, the restaurants are filled with people, some taking a lunch, others a dinner and still others only a cup of coffee or a light drink. The cooks declare they cannot do the work the way they should under these conditions and, what is more serious still, it is becoming more and more difficult to find kitchen helpers. In the good old days it was only the workers who had no fixed hours for meals, now it is the clients. The Spaniards, for instance, lunch at 3 in the afternoon and dine at 11. The Americans are divided into two classes, say the cooks. Some are extremely punctual and set themselves at table at 8, 12 and 6. They demand that their steaks and omelets arrive on time like the "express" from Chicago. Others are very irregular, lunching at 11 or 4, sometimes at tea-time and sometimes after the theater, all of which is disastrous to the dinner as well as the cook.

Mademoiselle Parienne will have an opportunity to learn something about American domestic economy through the generosity of a philanthropic American, Mrs. Edward Tuck, who is well known in Paris and all over France. A large house in Rueil, near St. Germain-Laye, has been offered to the French government to establish a school along American lines. It will be known as the "Tuck Foundation" and will be a model of its kind, instructing select students in all the branches of household economy. French women are essentially domestic and very clever with the needle as well as the kettle. A little instruction along scientific lines ought to make them the "perfect housewives."

A little Parisian tale: A beautiful Rumanian demoiselle who likes to "study" the night establishments of Montmartre meets a young Russian dancer. Neither one speaks the language of the other, but their tastes are the same and they get along famously. In fact, everything was lovely until they happened to meet a Spaniard who directs a large "dancing" in the Rue des Petits Champs. Speaking only the sign language, one wonders how they came to get into a dispute, but it was not long before the mixture of the three foreign tongues became very interesting. The climax was a bottle of champagne broken over the head of the Spaniard, Russian, Rumanian, Spaniard—bar-American, this is what is called a story "bien Parisien."

A new bridge across the Seine will greet visitors who come to Paris next year for the Exposition of Decorative Arts. Work is now going on to swing into place beside the historic old bridge leading to the chamber of deputies a 12-foot passage for pedestrians of reinforced concrete on huge steel pilings. The Pont Alexandre III, which was constructed for the last great Paris exposition, will be the main highway leading to the buildings in the Esplanade of the Invalides. The Pont de la Concorde will be reserved entirely for vehicles and the new bridge will take care of those who go on foot. In this way traffic can keep moving normally, even with the thousands of extra visitors expected in Paris in 1925.

A baby daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reed, of Grant street, Newell.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dixon, of Harker avenue, is suffering with an attack of pneumonia.

TAKING OFF WEIGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25.—Politics may have its paramount issues, but it has none of such keen interest and importance to women as the problem of how to retain slender, boyish figure that is the vogue of the day, or how to regain it once it has been lost and engulfed in a mass of adipose tissue. Putting on weight is one thing; taking it off is something else.

Fat is the spectre that haunts most women—and some men. With the latter, however, it is usually a question of health and longevity. They have found that excessive weight has attendant ills that are distressing and menacing, and they have been warned that they must reduce if they want to live long and enjoy life.

With women it is a question of appearance. To old saying that nobody loves a fat man has an up-to-date running mate to the effect that nobody looks at a fat woman. That is, nobody gives her a second look, save to say, "How awful!" And women on only like to be looked at, but they want the second look to be one of admiration. To women of the screen and stage, and even to those in the professions and in business, the trim figure is not only an asset but a necessity, and many of them fight hard to ward off the encroaching pounds that they would to keep the wolf away from the door.

Vanity? Perhaps, in some cases. But more often it is a matter of business, common sense and refinement. There are those who say that the person who is over-fat in body is usually fat in the head, and that the triple chin is the sign of self-indulgence.

However that may be, the subject of surplus weight is one of the momentous questions of the hour. This is evidenced by the innumerable articles and stories on various phases of the subject that are appearing constantly in newspapers and magazines, by the huge sums that are spent advertising nostrums and methods for reducing, by the experience of physicians, by the popularity of Turkish bath and massage establishments, and by the vastly increased interest of women in gymnasium exercises and in all forms of outdoor sports.

Tea-time talk, bonfire confidences and dinner table conversation furnish an abundance of testimony in corroboration. "I'm dieting," is heard more frequently among women nowadays than "I'm on the water wagon" was among men in the old ante-prohibition days.

WHAT ONE WOMAN DID

"How did you do it?" is the question put by her envious sisters to every woman who has fought a winning battle against embonpoint. There are numerous answers, but they all contain one fundamental truth—it isn't easy! Fat can't be wished off. Getting rid of it is a slow and distressing process, calling for endurance, tenacity of purpose, and courage of a high order. In fact, the starvation route is the direct road to the sylph-like figure and airy-fairy-Lillian contour.

One woman whose name should be inscribed in the Hall of Fame, but who modestly insists upon remaining anonymous, has made a record that is a message of hope to all stout and extra-stout. In seven months she reduced her weight 150 pounds. That was five or six years ago and she has been able to retain her new proportions, with occasional reactions of 25 or 30 pounds.

This woman admits that as a piece of parlor furniture she was decidedly of the over-stuffed type when it suddenly dawned upon her that her future, if she had any, was in a museum or a sideshow. Now she is distinctly of the Sheraton or Chippendale type. She weighed almost 300 pounds before she had her awakening, and she says she has no idea what her ultimate record would have been if her husband, in discussing the purchase of a new family car, hadn't suggested that a two-ton truck was what they really needed. That made her mad and she decided to show him she could train down to runabout size.

She didn't merely diet, she says. She practically quit eating. Fruit juice, dry toast, tea or black coffee with saccharine, lettuce and other green things and very rare steak were the only foods not on her prescribed list, and she partook of very little of any of these. She says it was a harrowing experience for seven months, but at the end of that time she weighed only 150. Then her skin was several sizes too large for her and hung in wrinkles and folds all over her, but nature promptly adjusted that.

GOES ON A TOMATO DIET

Ordinarily now she eats anything she cares for, but in much smaller quantities than formerly. She finds that she slowly gains weight, but when she wants to check that she goes on a diet of canned tomatoes—nothing but tomatoes as they come from the can—and takes off half a pound a day until she is satisfied with the result. Her sister, who has never been so mountaineous but who has a tendency toward embonpoint, says that with a lettuce-tomato diet and 15 minutes of daily exercise—bending, twisting, writhing and rolling—she can take off four pounds a week.

Screen stars and the much-filmed bathing beauties are especially interested in this world-wide problem, for they have to keep slim to hold their jobs. There is no place in picture-land for a fat woman or a fat girl except as a comic relief and who wants to see that? Photoplay recently published a symposium of the experiences and views of the screen notables, and almost without any exception they agreed that work and diet, exercise and starvation, are the only solutions of the problem.

Nita Naldi bears witness to the efficacy of the lamb chop and pineapple diet, saying that it pulled her down 20 pounds in a month. But, she confesses, "one must suffer headaches to be thin—don't believe anyone who tells you a different story. As far as I can tell, the lamb chop and pineapple diet cuts down your weight because it plays hob with the stomach. I know its advocates say it couldn't possibly, but they haven't lived with my stomach!"

Bebe Daniels says she doesn't diet, but she has four kinds of exercise to keep her figure under control. One of these exercises is hard work, by which she lost 15 pounds in three weeks. Anita Stewart testifies that green vegetables keep her a perfect 16.

Elsie Ferguson eats her three a day, but they are light and she rides horseback, swims, walks and plays tennis. Gloria Swanson doesn't have to worry about keeping slender because she doesn't care sufficiently about food to eat much more than enough to keep a hummingbird alive. Constance Talmadge says she deserves her slenderness because she has worked for it—walking, dieting, golf and dancing and the daily dozen. Her sister, Norma, supplements that with dieting and five periods of deep breathing every day. Roller skating keeps Viola Dana and her sister, Shirley Mason, "in form." Lois Wilson believes in the Turkish bath, Priscilla Dean goes in for tennis, swimming and the daily dozen, and Alice Terry says she does not believe in any trick diets but relies on massage and exercise if she finds it necessary to reduce.

One thing is to be noted as common in the experience of all those who reduce—alcoholic beverages must be eliminated.

Since milk and other foods are cleaner in cold weather it is safer for babies to cut their teeth during the winter months.

With the prevailing system of heating human habitations, it is more difficult to keep cool in the winter than in the summer.

Spending public funds to eradicate hookworm, malaria and typhoid fever is a sound investment. Funds expended in the treatment of these diseases is extravagant waste.

Friends who recommend petroleum to keep hair from falling out never say a word about John D.

Canadian Immigrants

Our highly restrictive immigration law is working to the advantage of Canada. At least, that is the way Canada looks at the matter. The Dominion wants more population, and immigrants excluded from this country are turning thither.

There has been a remarkable stimulus to Canadian immigration in the last few months. Immigrants from Great Britain have increased one-third, and those from other countries, excepting the United States, have nearly doubled. There is a decrease from this country.

The gain, however, is really offset by the steady stream of Canadians pouring into the states. They are coming at the rate of 20,000 a month, which is more than all of Canada's European immigrants put together. Even if, as Canadian figures indicate, there are 4,000 former Canadians returning every month from this country, Canada seems to show a net immigration loss as a result of the drain to the states.

Thus there is a double loss to the Dominion, along with a sort of double gain to this country. The new immigrants in Canada are mostly of good stock, and are a welcome addition to the population, but still it takes time and effort to get them adjusted to Canadian life. The transition from Europe to Canada is more difficult than the transition from Canada to the United States. Canadians are the most easily assimilated of all foreigners who come here, and the most welcome. Canada seems to be fitting immigrants for this country. And with true liberality, she is giving us more of them than we receive from all the other nations together.

Less Red

Communism in Europe is waning. It was never so strong as superficial observers imagined. An English Socialist publication gives the total number of Communist parties outside of Russia in 1920 as 1,064,000, and as now reduced to 591,000. Membership has remained about stationary in Germany, but has shrunk in Czechoslovakia, France and other countries.

The cause of the shrinkage is plain enough. It is partly due to a continued demonstration that the Soviet form of Communism is not working well in Russia. It is more due, perhaps, to the fact that Europe generally is recovering. Communism, Socialism, Bolshevism and other forms of radical economic revolt, though originating perhaps in the minds of intellectuals as dispassionate theories, thrive only in bad times. They derive their power from poverty and discontent. Industrial depression puts fire under their boilers. Accordingly as prosperity returns and the normal "capitalistic" order is resumed, organized revolt loses its power.

That is why Communism never gained a foothold in the United States, and is not likely to in the immediate future, at least. This country is too prosperous, the prosperity is too widely diffused among the people and there is too much economic opportunity for all classes to provide much support for any Socialist or Communist movement.

The German Loan

Of the $200,000,000 loan required to oil the German economic machinery, the United States is taking $110,000,000. Two big American banking firms have assumed responsibility for marketing it, and some 300 lesser concerns will help with the distribution. The amount has been readily subscribed by friends of Germany and disinterested investors who regard the loan as a safe enough enterprise.

At the same time, it is observed that this loan, taken largely through good will, backed by the best security Germany can offer and carrying at least the moral guarantee of the league of nations and the leading allied powers, has to pay 7 per cent interest and is placed on the market at only 92 cents on the dollar. It is profitable to compare that with American loans. Uncle Sam's 4 per cent war bonds are selling well over par, and he has borrowed money lately around 3 per cent.

It is just another evidence of the wide gap between American and European credit.

And I called on him in a shabby rooming house on St. Nicholas avenue. It seemed to me only the ashes remained. He spoke in a voice a shade above a whisper. His attitude was one of pathetic servility. His fingers had shrunk to bird-like claws.

There is a quotation from Burns which reads: "In darkness vile here must I wake and weep, And all my frowny countenance to smile were wrings of lugubrious grins. Free, he feared to go out on the street. At dusk I persuaded him to take a stroll. A full moon was flooding the streets. Not once did he look up.

I tried to tell him he must get a grip on himself. He owed much to his wife. "I'm completely beaten," he said. And with a shudder: "I am afraid." This man in an impulsive burst of anger had struck a friend and killed him. Drink was largely responsible.

Society had exacted its price. Yet somehow I could not help but feel that this fellow might have heaped the bitterness that is his. At his door, he said: "You've been kind, but it's no use. My life is as much over as though I were dead."

Next to the skyline the most colorful picture New York presents is Fifth avenue shop windows. Not another street presents such kaleidoscopic contrasts—painting, sculpture, jewelry, bronzes, antiques, pet dolls of 40 varieties, pop-eyed goldfish with tails three times as long as their bodies, the styles of famous designers, fine bindings, first editions, old silver, stamps, coins, hour glasses, and even the jinkle jangle of the five and ten.

Old Dan, the telescope man, a bit of professional gold turned to dross, had the surprise of his life while showing the stars at five cents per peep in Bryan park the other night. A man came up to behold the heavenly wonders. He presented a bill. Old Dan fumbled for change. "Keep it, Pop," said the patron. It was a brand new hundred dollar bill. And Dan has not been seen at his stand since. But the patron is there nightly looking for him. He thought it was a dollar.

Harry Kemp, the tramp poet, calls his home in the Village "The Oaks" because there is not an oak within a mile of it. In his neighborhood is Frank Shay's bookshop. Mary Vorse, the writer, lives nearby; so does Susan Glaspell, the playwright. It is a quiet section with a poet at every door, writing, and an artist at-top painting. The Village is the only spot left in New York with a general store and it is around the corner from Kemp's menage. There are cracker barrels where the Bohemians sit and spin tales of hopes and ambitions. Kemp's wife, a slight red-haired girl, is writing her first novel. Whatever may be said of the Village, it is rich and deep with color.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANGELEIER.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Now is the time for all good American students to be hurrying back to their books, and sometimes it is not such an easy matter, especially when one has been spending a long holiday in gay Paris. That is, there is often a little financial embarrassment attached to the leaving. At present an epidemic of stranded Dartmouth students is raging in Paris. College students who were eager to see the Old World forgot to set aside enough dollars to take them back to the New World. "So you're from Dartmouth" has come to be the familiar greeting of the director of the aid society, for the young man in question usually it.

The Parisian cooks are cross, and they have reason to be, it appears. "The influx of foreigners in France has brought with it a curious mix-up of the hours for meals, so that from 11 in the morning until midnight the restaurants are filled with people, some taking a lunch, others a dinner and still others only a cup of coffee or a light drink. The cooks declare they cannot do the work the way they should under these conditions and what is more serious still, it is becoming more and more difficult to find kitchen helpers. In the good old days it was only the workers who had no fixed hours for meals, now it is the clients. The Spaniards, for instance, lunch at 3 in the afternoon and dine at 11. The Americans are divided into two classes, say the cooks. Some are extremely punctual and set themselves at table at 8, 12 and 6. They demand that their steaks and omelettes arrive on time like the "express" from Chicago. Others are very irregular, lurching at 11 or 4, sometimes at tea-time and sometimes after the theater, all of which is disastrous to the dinner as well as the cook.

Mademoiselle Parienne will have an opportunity to learn something about American domestic economy through the generosity of a philanthropic American, Mrs. Edward Tuck, who is well known in Paris and all over France. A large house in Rueil, near St. Germain-l'aye, has been offered to the French government to establish a school along American lines. It will be known as the "Tuck Foundation" and will be a model of its kind, instructing selected students in all the branches of household economy. French women are essentially domestic and very clever with the needle as well as the kettle. A little instruction along scientific lines ought to make them the "perfect housewives."

A little Parisian tale: A beautiful Rumanian demoiselle who likes to "study" the night establishments of Montmartre meets a young Russian dancer. Neither one speaks the language of the other, but their tastes are the same and they get along famously. In fact, everything was lovely until they happened to meet a Spaniard who directs a large "dancing" in the Rue des Petit Champs. Speaking only the sign language, one wonders how they came to get into a dispute, but it was not long before the mixture of the three foreign tongues became very interesting. The climax was a bottle of champagne broken over the head of the Spaniard. Russian, Rumanian, Spaniard—bar American, this is what is called a story "bien Parisien."

A new bridge across the Seine will greet visitors who come to Paris next year for the Exposition of Decorative Arts. Work is now going on to swing into place beside the historic old bridge leading to the chamber of deputies a 12-foot passage for pedestrians of reinforced concrete on huge steel pilings. The Pont Alexandre III, which was constructed for the last great Paris exposition, will be the main highway leading to the buildings in the Esplanade of the Invalides. The Pont de la Concorde will be reserved entirely for vehicles and the new bridge will take care of those who go on foot. In this way traffic can keep moving normally, even with the thousands of extra visitors expected in Paris in 1925.

A baby daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Reed, of Grant street, Newell.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dixon, of Barker avenue, is suffering with an attack of pneumonia.

Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Gilmore were surprised by 100 guests Tuesday evening in their home in West Point. The affair was a farewell party, as Dr. and Mrs. Gilmore will leave this week for the city, where they will reside permanently. Dr. Gilmore has been located in West Point for more than 20 years.

TAKING OFF WEIGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25.—Politics may have its paramount issues, but it has none of such keen interest and importance to women as the problem of how to retain slender, boyish figure that is the vogue of the day, or how to regain it after it has been lost and engulfed in a mass of adipose tissue. Putting on weight is one thing; taking it off is something else.

Fat is the specter that haunts most women—and some men. With the latter, however, it is usually a question of health and longevity. They have found that excessive weight has attendant ills that are distressing and menacing, and they have been warned that they must reduce if they want to live long and enjoy life.

With women it is a question of appearance. The old saying that nobody loves a fat man has an up-to-date running mate to the effect that nobody looks at a fat woman. That is, nobody gives her a second look, save to say, "How awful!" And women out only like to be looked at, but they want the second look to be one of admiration. To women of the screen and stage, and even to those in the professions and in business, the trim figure is not only an asset but a necessity, and many of them fight hard to ward off the encroaching pounds that they would to keep the wolf away from the door.

Vanities? Perhaps, in some cases. But more often it is a matter of business, common sense and refinement. There are those who say that the person who is over-fat in body is usually fat in the head, and that the triple chin is the sign of self-indulgence.

However that may be, the subject of surplus weight is one of the momentous questions of the hour. This is evidenced by the innumerable articles and stories on various phases of the subject that are appearing constantly in newspapers and magazines, by the huge sums that are spent advertising nostrums and methods for reducing, by the experience of physicians, by the popularity of Turkish bath and massage establishments, and by the vastly increased interest of women in gymnasium exercises and in all forms of outdoor sports.

Tea-time talk, bonnet confidences and dinner table conversation furnish an abundance of testimony in corroboration. "I'm dieting," is heard more frequently among women nowadays than "I'm on the waterwagon" was among men in the old anti-prohibition days.

WHAT ONE WOMAN DID

"How did you do it?" is the question put by her envious sisters to every woman who has fought a winning battle against embonpoint. There are numerous answers, but they all contain one fundamental truth—it isn't easy! Fat can't be wished off. Getting rid of it is a slow and distressing process, calling for endurance, tenacity of purpose, and courage of a high order. In fact, the starvation route is the direct road to the sylph-like figure and airy-fairy-Lilian contour.

One woman whose name should be inscribed in the Hall of Fame, but who modestly insists upon remaining anonymous, has made a record that is a message of hope to all stout and extra-stouts. In seven months she reduced her weight 150 pounds. That was five or six years ago and she has been able to retain her new proportions, with occasional reactions of 25 or 30 pounds.

This woman admits that as a piece of parlor furniture she was decidedly of the over-stuffed type when it suddenly dawned upon her that her future, if she had any, was in a museum or a sideshow. Now she is distinctly of the Sheraton or Chippendale type. She weighed almost 300 pounds before she had her awakening, and she says she has no idea what her ultimate record would have been if her husband, in discussing the purchase of a new family car, hadn't suggested that a two-ton beast was what they really needed. That made her mad and she decided to show him she could trim down to runabout size.

She didn't merely diet, she says. She practically quit eating. Fruit juice, dry toast, tea or black coffee with saccharine, lettuce and other green things and very rare steak were the only foods not on her prescribed list, and she partook of very little of any of those. She says it was a harrowing experience for seven months, but at the end of that time she weighed only 156. Then her skin was several sizes too large for her and hung in wrinkles and folds all over her, but nature presently adjusted that.

GOES ON A TOMATO DIET

Ordinarily now she eats anything she cares for, but in much smaller quantities than formerly. She finds that she slowly gains weight, but when she wants to check that she goes on a diet of canned tomatoes—nothing but tomatoes as they come from the can—and takes off half a pound a day until she is satisfied with the result. Her sister, who has never been so mountainous but who has a tendency toward embonpoint, says that with a lettuce-tomato diet and 15 minutes of daily exercise—bending, twisting, writhing and rolling—she can take off four pounds a week.

Screen stars and the much-filmed bathing beauties are especially interested in this world-wide problem for they have to keep slim to hold their jobs. There is no place in picture-land for a fat woman or a fat girl except as a comic relief and who wants to see that? Photoplay recently published a symposium of the experiences and views of a screen notables, and almost without any exception they agreed that work and diet, exercise and starvation, are the only solutions of the problem.

Nita Naldi bears witness to the efficacy of the lamb chop and pineapple diet, saying that it pulled her down 20 pounds in a month. But, she continues, "one must suffer hates to be thin—don't believe anyone who tells you a different story. As far as I can tell, the lamb chop and pineapple diet cuts down your weight because it plays hob with the stomach. I know its advocates say it couldn't possibly, but they haven't lived with my stomach!"

Babe Daniels says she doesn't diet, but she has four kinds of exercise to keep her figure under control. One of these exercises is hard work, by which she lost 15 pounds in three weeks. Anita Stewart testifies that green vegetables keep her a perfect 16.

Elsie Ferguson eats her three a day, but they are light and she rides horseback, swims, walks and plays tennis. Gloria Swanson doesn't have to worry about keeping slender because she doesn't care sufficiently about food to eat much more than enough to keep a hummingbird alive. Constance Talmadge says she deserves to be slim because she has worked for it—walking, tennis, golf and dancing and the daily dozen. Her sister, Norma, supplements that with dieting and five periods of deep breathing every day. Roller skating keeps Viola Dana and her sister, Shirley Mason, "in form." Lois Wilson believes in the Turkish bath, Priscilla Dean goes in for tennis, swimming and the daily dozen, and Alice Terry says she does not believe in any trick diets but relies on massage and exercise if she finds it necessary to reduce.

One thing is to be noted as common in the experience of all those who reduce—alcoholic beverages must be eliminated.

Since milk and other foods are cleaner in cold weather it is safer for babies to cut their teeth during the winter months.

With the prevailing system of heating human habitations, it is more difficult to keep cool in the winter than in the summer.

Spending public funds to eradicate hookworm, malaria and typhoid fever is a sound investment. Funds expended in the treatment of these diseases is extravagant waste.

Friends who recommend petroleum to keep hair from falling out never say a word about John D.

CARE OF THE HAIR

Go into almost any household and in the bathroom will be found a tooth brush and a tube of tooth paste for each of its members. The dentist has educated the public to the dangers of neglecting the teeth. Neglect of the teeth causes them to decay; neglect of the hair causes its loss. The two are very similar, but a tooth hurts while the scalp itches. When it does the disease is deep and scratching makes it deeper. Should it hurt instead of itch there would be fewer bald heads.

CARE OF THE HAIR

Go into almost any household and in the bathroom will be found a tooth brush and a tube of tooth paste for each of its members. The dentist has educated the public to the dangers of neglecting the teeth. Neglect of the teeth causes them to decay; neglect of the hair causes it to fall out. The two are very similar, but a tooth hurts while the scalp itches. When it does the disease is deep and scratching makes it deeper. Should it hurt instead of itch there would be fewer bald heads.

Scalp treatment for men and women. I treat each case individually. Compound all my own tonics according to the conditions. Consultation and advice free.

LISBON

PERCY TETLOW VISITS HERE

Labor Leader Loud in Praise of Protective Tariff.

"President Calvin Coolidge is stronger among the laboring people than you have any idea of," declared Percy Tetlow, formerly a miner and residing at Leetonia, and now statistician of the United Mine Workers' union, with offices in Indianapolis. He resides in Columbus.

"I'm strong for a protective tariff," Mr. Tetlow declared when visiting friends in the Lisbon mining district. "I don't know whether you are aware of the fact or not, but we have positive information that wages in England are three times lower than they are in the United States, industry for industry, and in France and Germany they are five times lower. That shows you what we're up against."

"I'm here to say that if it was not for the present tariff bill, and with the low standard of wages and living conditions in these foreign countries, our country would be flooded with the cheap labor-made foreign merchandise, and every American industry would be seriously crippled. Then what would happen? Those who are employed in these American industries would be up against it right."

"I'm for the protective tariff all the time, and with such a tariff and our present immigration laws we're protecting our industries, and I mean the industries in every state. "There is absolutely no truth in the charge that the Fordney-McCumber tariff has given the American manufacturers a monopoly of the American markets, thereby enabling them to raise prices and rob the consumer. On the contrary, American manufacturers have had more competition from foreign markets since this law was passed than ever before in the history of the nation. It's the production of merchandise by the cheapest kind of labor that has made this competition with foreign merchandise, while American wages are good and the standard of living high."

"The only way to continue to have the protection of a right tariff and right immigration laws is to continue the national Republican administration and a Republican congress."

Attention Called To Crossing Where Man Meets Death

Some weeks ago when the county commissioners were making a tour over in the northern part of the county, they drove over the Columbiana-Leetonia road east, and at that time noted the dangerous condition of the Ft. Wayne railroad crossing, where E. B. Wright, of East Liverpool, was killed Thursday night.

Soon afterwards a resolution was placed on the journal of the board requesting the public utilities commission of Ohio to order the Pennsylvania Railroad company to safeguard this crossing, which is known as the "Quisley crossing." Nothing has been heard from the commission since the request was made.

Some years ago two men were killed at this same spot and a third suffered the loss of his legs. The crossing is considered the most dangerous of all railroad grade crossings in the county, and motorists as a rule approach it with extreme caution.

TWO LAND LEASES DULY RECORDED

An 80-acre oil lease and all chatties, owned by H. C. Burns, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been sold to T. P. Connelly, of Pittsburgh, for $1,000. The acreage under lease is located in Middlefield township, and is the lease formerly held by E. C. and A. B. Vale.

For the nominal consideration of $1 the Nesbit Oil and Gas company has sold its chatties and interest in a lease on 25 acres of land in Liverpool township, bordering the state line, to G. W. Burt. The chatties include pipe and other fittings.

Decision Appealed.

Mary West, of Salem, as administratrix of the estate of William West, deceased, through her counsel, Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, have taken an appeal from the decision of the industrial commission of Ohio to the court of common pleas.

The petition recites that Mr. West, while in the employ of the E. W. Bliss company, of Salem, November 27, 1923, received injuries that entitled him to compensation, but when the claim was placed before the commission it was disallowed, although the employing interest participated in the industrial commission fund. As soon as the decision of the commission was received an appeal was immediately taken.

Marriage License.

A marriage license has been issued to William J. Miller, a farmer of North Denton, and Miss Helen D. Whinery, of Salem, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Whinery, of Wilsons. They were married at the Episcopal church by the Rev. W. E. Dutton.

DIVORCE COURT IS BUSY PLACE

Six Decrees Granted and Similar Number Taken Off Docket.

Six divorce actions that have been pending in common pleas court for many months have been dismissed from the records by Judge James G. Moore, and six divorces have been granted and one continued. This is the divorce court record for the week.

Failure to prosecute a divorce action will result in a similar order, as the court has ruled that such actions on the docket for a year without any action being taken will be dismissed.

Jeannette McDonald, who filed an action for divorce against her husband, Walter B. McDonald, has had the action dismissed at her cost.

For lack of prosecution the action filed by Verna L. Dillon against George M. Dillon has also been dismissed for lack of prosecution. The costs are against the plaintiff.

Elizabeth J. Laonceli sued her husband, Louis F. Laonceli, for divorce and alimony, but on her motion the action has been dismissed at her cost. This action was filed November 22, 1922.

The divorce case of Helen Shannon against John Shannon has also been dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff.

Rose E. Howell, who filed an action for alimony against her husband, James H. Howell, June 18, last, filed her motion to have the action dismissed at her cost.

On the grounds of three years' wilful absence, Goldie Murdock Swaney has been granted a divorce from her husband, Harry McQuiken Swaney. The petition in this case was filed by Attorney K. L. Coburn, of Salem, August 2. The whereabouts of Swaney are unknown to the plaintiff.

Elizabeth D. Rayburn, of Salem, has obtained a divorce from her husband on the grounds of extreme cruelty. Alimony was fixed by the court as agreed upon. Mrs. Rayburn, when placed on the witness stand and questioned by her counsel, Attorney George T. Farrell, declared that her husband cursed her and that he sat up all night singing.

Sadie Dietz, in being granted a decree of divorce from her husband, Howard Dietz, on her petition filed by Attorney Frank E. Grosshans, July 5, last, was given the possession of the home where she resides free of rent, and Dietz has to pay $24 building and loan dues. She was also given custody of one child, William Dietz, while Mildred Dietz remains in the custody of Howard Dietz until further order of court. Judgment for the costs in the case was rendered against the defendant.

Charles Martin was the only man to secure a divorce from his wife, she being Leona Martin. This petition was filed August 26, last, by Attorney W. S. Foulks, and he secured his decree on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

After Katherine E. Johnston secured a decree of divorce from her husband, John R. Johnston, on the grounds of three years' wilful absence, Johnston was ordered to pay his wife $500 alimony instantly, and also the costs in the case. Mrs. Johnston sued for divorce, alimony and custody of her child, and won on all three points set up in her petition.

Geraldine E. Gattrell, on the grounds of extreme cruelty, was granted a decree of divorce from her husband, Ralph M. Gattrell, her petition being filed by Attorney George E. Davison. She was also awarded the custody of her child, and Gattrell has been ordered by the court to pay his wife $5 per week for the support of his child.

Floyd E. Pollock, who was cited to appear before the court and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt, following an order issued by the court in the divorce action filed against him by his wife, Maud M. Pollock, obeyed the order. Counsel for both the plaintiff and the defendant had the case passed to such day as may later be agreed upon for trial.

Not in many months were so many had the plaintiff and his or her wife in divorce court. No sooner were through testifying and the decree of the court announced, another plaintiff and witnesses took their seats inside the big hall. It was a busy session of court and when stories of ill-mated lives were revealed.

Leetonia Plans Sewage System.

A bond issue of $1,750 has been proposed by the council of Leetonia for the construction of a sewage system and a sewage disposal plant. The bonds are to bear interest at the rate of five percent, and are to run for a term of 15 years. The first bond for $750 will be payable Oct. 1, 1926, and annually thereafter on October 1st at the rate of $1,000.

Lisbon Speaker Points Out Examples of Foreign Troubles.

"There must be something wrong when the leaders of both major political parties tell you to steer clear of that thing which is the cause of so much trouble in foreign countries," declared Judge Charles S. Turnbaugh, of Cambridge, during an address at the Lisbon Opera House Friday night.

"I charge you to think before you cast your ballot to destroy the foundations of the government of the United States. I charge you to study a situation which, if allowed to be put over, would pull down the standards of America to the depths of those in European countries."

"Robert Ingersoll during his life preached a certain doctrine but when he came to die he declared he was not so sure that what he had been preaching was so. He lacked conviction of his own teachings. And I take it that Robert La Follette in preaching his doctrine before he reached the end of span of life will in some manner say he was wrong."

Mrs. Ruth Moser Place, of Michigan, came to Lisbon for the Republican meeting at Wellsville and in her address declared that to knock the foundation of the constitution of America was to wreck the country. She favored a high protective tariff, and declared that in doing so, she spoke as a mother and a housewife.

Judge Yoon of Youngstown, a brother of Attorney Everett L. Lyon, of East Palestine, spoke at length on various national issues.

The meeting was in charge of Judge Louis T. Farr. Over 500 people attended this Republican rally.

Meet Christ's Requirements In This Life, Is Appeal Made By Dr. W. E. Biederwolf

"People Cannot Live 'Good Lord and Good Devil' Sort of Time and Expect Character Development," Warns Evangelist.

Dr. Biederwolf, in his sermon Friday night, said:

The Cup of the Devil.
"We cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of Devil," 1 Cor. 10:21.

There are some things that God can't do. He can't make wrong to be right. He can't make two and two equal five. He can't make a responsible moral agent like you and me with giving us at the same time the power of free unhindered choice. And so of course you can take one or the other of them. You can take the cup of the Devil and go to the Devil if you want to. That's your privilege according to the laws of nature. You're the boss. If you want to run your neck into a noose and hang your fool self, God isn't going to make a manakin or an automaton out of you to keep you from it.

Our God is a wonderful God, and to me the most wonderful thing about Him is the personal and individual interest He takes in every one of the

You Can Drive It All Day Without Fatigue

What the group of Maxwell-Chrysler engineers responsible for the good Maxwell of today have accomplished is just this—

They have raised four-cylinder motoring to a plane of fineness and comfort heretofore assumed to be impossible in a car of this type.

They have accomplished it not alone through the insistence on fine manufacturing and the use of first grade materials. They have also employed engineering innovations that practically eliminate vibration and otherwise perfect performance and riding quality.

You will especially appreciate these higher qualities when you make a country run of considerable distance.

Where you used to return from such a trip thoroughly weary, now with the good Maxwell you can drive all day without fatigue.

And as for dependable, care-free, economical service, the good Maxwell still leads all cars at anywhere near its price.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

35 billions of human beings that bear His image. And He is doing everything He can in your case and in mine to make that image a worthy example of the glory and beauty of His own perfection. He'll do everything He can to help you come clean. But if you are going to blind your eyes to every ray of light of warning He hangs out along the way, and rush pell-mell past every semaphore of His grace, and spurn every offer of His grace and power to make out of yourself the man you ought to be, don't try to lay the blame on God if you wake up some time and find yourself a pallbearer at your own funeral. If you are going to hang out your sign and advertise to the world that you are a Christian, to world expects you, and so does God, to deliver the goods.

There never was a time when the world needed the Church of Jesus Christ so much as she does today, and there never was a time when the church needed genuine, God-fearing, true-blue, vow-respecting members as she does today—men and women who are a credit to their profession and who will honor the name of the Christ they bear; who won't trim their sails to catch every passing breeze of popularity to win the favor of a lot of conscientious, Godless ward-healing politicians or to hold the friendship of a lot of high-rolling brainless, pencil eyebrowed society fools who don't care a rap for Christ.

But the church has too many members who are ready to sell out at the first offer and some of you bring a mighty little price when you do sell. I can tell you that. Esau sold out for a mess of pottage, but he did a land office business compared with the thing that you turned your back on Christ for. I don't see why people can't be as loyal to their vow to serve Christ as they are to the other vows they make.

Loyalty to Constitution.

I like to think of Speaker Lenthaw and his loyalty to the Constitution. It was in the reign of Charles the First and tremendous influence was brought to bear upon him in an effort to induce him to dissolve parliament. But he was loyal and he said, "I have neither ears to hear, nor eyes to see, nor lips to speak save as the Constitution whose servant I am bids me."

My, but if we had a church membership like that! But we haven't. The most of us, I am afraid, have got ears and eyes and lips for almost everything else but what Jesus bids us. The church is suffering from spiritual spinal meningitis and no wonder she can't stand erect and be the power in the world she ought to be.

When Millet, whose Angelus captivated the whole art-loving world, was about to depart from his home for Paris where he became a pupil of Deroche, his pious old grandmother said to him, "I would rather see you dead than unfaithful to God's commands." And when he was just coming into his glory as one of the greatest painters of his day, this same woman whose influence made itself felt in every picture he painted, reminded him, "Remember, my son, that you were a Christian before you were a painter." A Christian first, always! And if you church members of East Liverpool would let that be your motto and be true to it, you'd re-write the history of this old sin-cursed and God-less community in short order.

Paul's Expression.

"Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devil."

Now what made Paul use that expression? If it was original with me, some of you'd call it slang. Well, I'll tell you.

The Corinthians had been heathen and when they were converted they sat down at the Lord's table. But they were living among their old neighbors and they had their sacraments just as well as the Christians. They'd go up to the temple of Apollo or Aphrodite and get sprinkled over with some sort of lustral water and then after the victim had been slain and while the sacrificial supper was being prepared they'd go through a lot of the fashionable dances that were popular in the dirty upper classes of society, the Turkey trot, the Kuchchi kuch and a lot of other Mid-way Plaisance stunts and then they would sit down and eat and drink, especially drink, until the whole blooming bunch would get on a beastly drunk. Why old Aristotle derived the Greek verb, "to be drunk" from the

You Can Drive It All Day Without Fatigue

What the group of Maxwell-Chrysler engineers responsible for the good Maxwell of today have accomplished is just this—

They have raised four-cylinder motoring to a plane of fineness and comfort heretofore assumed to be impossible in a car of this type.

They have accomplished it not alone through the insistence on fine manufacturing and the use of first grade materials. They have also employed engineering innovations that practically eliminate vibration and otherwise perfect performance and riding quality.

You will especially appreciate these higher qualities when you make a country run of considerable distance.

Where you used to return from such a trip thoroughly weary, now with the good Maxwell you can drive all day without fatigue.

And as for dependable, care-free, economical service, the good Maxwell still leads all cars at anywhere near its price.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY.

"Rather a nice way for a cattle foreman to talk about his ranch, isn't it?" asked Lee colorlessly.

"Cattle foreman?" sniffed Carson with further expletives. "Now, will you stan' on your two feet an' explain to me how in blue blazes a man can be a cattle foreman when there ain't no cattle!"

"So that's it, is it? I didn't know how close you were selling off—"

"Don't say me selling! Why, I got silage to run my cow brutes all winter, what with the dry feed in them canyons—"

Lee didn't hear the test. It had been his intention to come in and smoke with the boys, and perhaps play a game of whist. Anything to keep from thinking. But now, moving on impulse, he turned and left the shack, going swiftly up the knoll to the ranch house.

Just stepping into the courtyard soft under the moon, tinkling with the pat of the fountains, stirred his heart to quicker beating.

He had not set foot here for over two months, not since that night which he knew he should forget and yet to whose memory he clung desperately. This was the first time in many a long week that he had gone out of his way to seek Judith. And now words which Judith herself had spoken to him one day were now at least a part of the cause sending him to speak with her. She had said that he was loyal, that she needed loyal men. He still took her wage, he was still a Blue Lake ranch hand, he still owed her his loyalty, though it came from a sore heart.

If she were hard driven in some way which she had not seen fit to confide to him, if she were forced to make this tremendous sale, if she were mad, if she had at last lost her nerve, frightened at the thought of the heavy sums of money to be raised at the end of the winter, well, then it still could do no harm for him to speak his mind to her. Hampton had told him the price which the horses were to bring; it was pitifully small and Lee meant to tell her so, to tell her further that he would guarantee an enormous gain over it if she gave him time. He would be doing his part though she called him meddler for his pains.

Marcia Langworthy, hidden in a big chair on the veranda, watched him approach with interest, though Lee was unconscious of her presence. He had lifted a hand to rap at the door when she called to him, saying:

"Good evening, Mr. Mysterious Lee. Have you forgotten me?"

Though he had pretty well forgotten her, it was not necessary to tell her that he had. He came toward her, putting out his hand.

"Good evening, Miss Langworthy," he said cordially. "I haven't seen much of you this time, have I? Two reasons, you know; busy all day and half the night, for one thing, and for another, Hampton has monopolized you, hasn't he?"

Marcia laughed softly.

"To a man your size the second reason is absurd. . . . Will you sit down? You see, I am taking it for granted that you came here to see me. Unless," and her eyes twinkled brightly up at him, "you were surreptitiously calling on Mrs. Simpson?"

"I'd love to talk with you," he assured her. "But, as I've just hinted, my work here has got into the habit of running away with me into the night. I really came up for a word with Miss Sanford."

"Oh, didn't you know?" asked Marcia. "Judith isn't here."

"Isn't here?" He frowned. "No, I didn't know. I haven't seen much of her lately and didn't know her plans. Where is she?"

"In San Francisco. Her lawyers sent for her, you know. Something about a tangle in her father's business. Funny you hadn't heard; she left Saturday night."

Saturday? This was Tuesday evening. Judith had been away three full days. Lee, thinking hurriedly, thought that he saw now the explanation of Judith's ordering a sale like this. Her lawyers had found what Marcia called a "tangle" in Luke Sanford's affairs; there had been an insistent call for a large sum of money to straighten it out, and Judith had accepted the only solution.

Still, it didn't seem like Judith to sell like this at a figure so ridiculously low. Doan, Rockwell & Haight were not the only buyers on the coast; Lee himself could get more for the horses if he had two days' time to look around; the cattle were worth a great deal more than they were being sold for, even with the market down.

"Did she have an idea what the trouble was before she left?" he asked finally.

"Why," said Marcia, "I don't know. You see, she slipped out late Saturday night after we'd all gone to bed. There was a message for her over the telephone; she got up, dressed, saddled her own horse and rode into Rocky Bend alone, just leaving a note for me that she might be gone a week or two."

Just why he experienced a sense of uneasiness even then, Lee did not know. It was like Judith to act swiftly when need be; to go alone and on the spur of the minute to catch her train; to slip out quietly without disturbing his guest.

"You have heard from her since?" he demanded abruptly.

"Not a word," said Marcia. "She doesn't like letter writing and so I haven't expected to hear from her."

Lee chatted with her for a moment, then claiming work still to be done, turned to go back down the knoll. A new thought upon him, he once more came to Marcia's side.

"I expect I'd better see Hampton," he said. "Do you know where he is?"

"Where he has been every night since Judith left," laughed Marcia. "He's old Mr. Business Man these days. In the office."

There Lee found him. Hampton, his hair ruffled, Judith's table littered with market reports, and many sheets of paper covered with untidy figures, looked up at Lee's entrance.

"Hello, Bud," he said, reaching for cigarette and match. "Got everything ready for tomorrow?"

"Why didn't you tell me Miss Sanford had gone away?" was Lee's sharp rejoinder. Hampton flushed.

words that mean "after the sacrifice." But Paul called this kind of sacrifice the table of the Lord. But the strange thing is that some of the Corinthian church members thought they could sit down at the Lord's table and then go over and join their old friends in their temple sacrifices and not get any harm from it. They thought that they could be Christians and Pagans at the same time. But Paul said, "Not on your life." Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of the Devil."

Personal Liberty. Now the whole thing was a question of personal liberty. Its mighty strange how people will try to justify themselves when they want to do a thing. Some of them will "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel." These Corinthian Devil-servers commenced to argue. They said, "We don't want to cut out old friends, and besides it won't do us any harm. You know Paul, you said yourself that 'Andol is nothing in the world' anyhow; and besides Paul, we don't get drunk; we'll use moderation. Why Paul if you take our personal liberty from us you'll make us weaklings," and so on and so on.

And just here lies the peril of the church and the peril of the individual Christian. It is the peril of the morally impossible. It is the unwarranted liberty you take and try to justify yourself in doing it because you are not willing to make some sacrifice and be on the square with Christ.

We see it in the POLITICAL WORLD.

The average politician hasn't got any more conscience than a graveyard ghoul or any more heart than a Tennessee rattlesnake.

Thank God we've got some mighty fine men in office today and always have had, but I tell you the things that have occurred in the past ten years in politics put your confidence to a mighty big test and you almost tremble for fear the man you believe in most is going to turn out a rascal, a rogue and a low-down, unprincipled grafter.

We all call America Christian and I guess she is as nations go, but if our reputation as a Christian nation had to stand on a good deal of our past record, the world would never get the idea that we are sick abed because we can't be good.

God wants the individual to be true and He wants the nation to be true. When I'm dead I'd rather have it said on my tombstone, "Here lies a man who was true to his convictions," than I would to have it read, "Here lies the President of the United States," if I had to get the Presidency by dipping my colors to a lot of pin-headed, weasel-souled hoodie politicians.

If you are professing a Christian man politics will never furnish you any excuse for drinking the cup of the Devil, and the law of your own personal life must be your law as the representative of the people; because the nation sins only through its leaders and through its people when it allows its leaders to carry on a dirty grafting business without calling them to account.

II. YOU SEE IT IN THE BUSINESS WORLD. I stood in the New Orleans Cotton Exchange sometime ago and saw a lot of money-mad speculators nearly break themselves in two trying to buy and sell imaginary cotton. I thought one poor devil would burst a blood vessel with his frantic yells and disjoint himself with his wild gesticulations.

A woman said, "Now, just what are they doing?"

I said, "Gambling." "But," she said, "I know a lot of nice people who are members of the church, who do business on the Board of Trade."

And I said, "I do too, gamblers—the most of them."

Legitimate Business. I've got no kick against legitimate buying and selling on the Stock Exchange, but dealing in futures, buying and selling wheat you never see and never expect to see and speculating on the price, buying stocks on margin and dealing on short sales is a devilish, dirty business; and I don't care who engage in it.

And yet people will argue about its ethics just like they will about a game of poker. They say, "If a man wants to take a risk and both go into the game with their eyes open, where's the harm?"

Well, ask the laws of your state where the harm is. They'll tell you so quick it will make your head swim.

Some church members will keep their store open on Sunday and justify themselves by saying their competitors do it. But if your competitors drink the cup of the Devil that don't give you any right to do anything but what you know God wants you to do.

If your old shebang is going to bust because you haven't got business ability enough to run it, keeping it open on Sunday isn't going to save it. It's all a lie.

Church members will get in debt and then argue their poverty as a reason for letting the grocery keeper sweat. A dead-beat is a 33rd degree dyed in the wool-stamped on the cork, blown in the bottle child of the Devil.

Pay your debts. God won't send you to hell if you can't pay. But that don't lessen your obligation any to the man you owe. Some of you sink that have lost your credit around here smoke up and puff out and chew up and spit out enough tobacco in one year to go a good ways toward paying some of your debts.

"Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of Devils."

III. This tendency is seen especially in the social world.

This is the thing that got Corinth. I don't knock on society. All the beasts and all the birds go in bunches and God made us social beings. But why is it that every voice in pulpit and in press uplifted for the race has had it in for society. Because its chuck full of fools, that don't know where to stop, that don't know the difference between moderation and excess, they don't know the difference between decency and dirtiness.

Nefarious Social Doings. The average society woman has about as little sense as God could well put in a human being and still let her pass for a woman. Its pretty much as a friend of mine down in Georgia used to say, if some of you'll fall in the water, you wouldn't need anybody to rescue you. Just spread your handkerchief and you'll come sailing in; your head is so empty it'll float you to shore.

If you'd happen in on some of these frivolous functions of bon-ton society some afternoon pink team, or frappe affair, and commence to talk about anything that's real and worthy of thoughtful consideration they'd vote you a bore and tell you to "beat it."

Now it's mighty plain if you drink the cup of the Lord why you've got to be mighty careful when you rub up against the social world. You're in danger of being swept away. It'll carry you along with it.

When the World's Fair was in Chicago a man was walking with his little boy along where they had one of those wooden imitations of the noted Ferris Wheel. The little fellow wanted to ride but the father told him he was afraid it wasn't safe. But the boy kept teasing his father until he bought the tickets and got in. In the box just in front of them were some drunken rowdies and the man didn't know they had given the owner some extra money to turn on the full power and let her out just to see how fast the old thing could go. And it started; round and round it went faster and faster while the rowdies laughed and shouted. The old thing commenced to groan and creak and shake, and the father with his boy got frightened half to death. He was bald headed but he could just feel the hair standing up on top of his head and the cold chills commenced to go down his back, but what could he do? He was in the thing and he had to keep up with it. He was traveling in pretty fast society but he kept up with the crowd because he couldn't help it.

That's what the Corinthians did and that's what you'll be doing if you're not careful, but you'll be drinking the cup of Devils when you do it.

You say, "Well, when you are in Rome, you must do as Rome does." No, you mustn't. That's a lowdown, mean, contemptible definition of the way to live.

If you found your boy in a stale beer joint with a bunch of dirty loafers gambling over a jackpot, you'd cry, "My God, has it come to this!" But wait a minute and let me paint the pictures for you.

Society's Bad Start.

That boy of yours went a few years ago, by your sanction and possibly in your company, to some of your approved society affairs; maybe it was in your own home. You gathered about a table—it was mahogany; there was a Persian rug on the floor; Brussels Net curtains on the window; a brilliant candleabra and a French plate mirror. On the table or at one side is a cut glass dish—a prize that represents the value of somebody's money. The hostess produces some cards and for hours you play to win. You get thirsty and the maid comes in, passes around the punch or the frappe, and you're at it again until the stake's been won, and at a late hour or early hour in the morning you go home.

Now, let's paint the other picture as true to life as this one. It's in a dirty booze joint, and around the table sits a bunch of dissipated, red-eyed, God-forsaken, vicious men and young men. The table is pine, but that don't make any difference. The curtains are paint but that don't make any difference. The light reflectors are tin but that don't make any difference. The mirror is a cheap soap-be-decorated glass, but that don't make any difference. On the table is a jack-pot—there's money there, or chips that represent it. The cards are used, the game is started—just like the one you played. They get thirsty and the bar-maid comes in and passes around the drinks and the game goes on until the stake is won, and at a late hour or early hour in the morning, they go home. Where is the difference?

Your boy matriculated in the parlor; he graduated in the other place. You know what Uncle Bobbie says in "That Printer of Udell's?" "Gamblin' church members ain't got no call to kick if their children play cards for money." You punch your boy's ticket for hell, and then you blame him for

Can Murder Time.

You can murder time and character at the card table if you want to; you can keep a "gentleman's celler" if you choose, you can befool your mind with lust at a dirty theatrical performance if that is what you hank for. words that mean "after the sacrifice." But Paul called this kind of sacrifice the table of the Lord. But the strange thing is that some of the Corinthian church members thought they could sit down at the Lord's table and then go over and join their old friends in their temple sacrifices and not get any harm from it. They tried to think they could be Christians and Pagans at the same time. But Paul said, "Not on your life." Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of the Devil.

Personal Liberty.

Now the whole thing was a question of personal liberty. Its mighty strange how people will try to justify themselves when they want to do a thing. Some of them will "strain at a gnat and swallow a camel." These Corinthian Devil-servers commenced to argue. They said, "We don't want to cut out old friends, and besides it won't do us any harm. You know Paul, you said yourself that 'Andol is nothing in the world' anyhow; and besides Paul, we don't get drunk; we'll use moderation. Why Paul if you take our personal liberty from us you'll make us weaklings," and so on and so on.

And just here lies the peril of the church and the peril of the individual Christian.

It is the peril of the morally impossible. It is the unwarranted liberty you take and try to justify yourself in doing it because you are not willing to make some sacrifice and be on the square with Christ.

See it everywhere.

We see it in the POLITICAL WORLD.

The average politician has got any more conscience than a graveyard ghoul or any more heart than a Tennessee rattlesnake.

Thank God we've got some mighty fine men in office today and always have had, but I tell you the things that have occurred in the past ten years in politics put your confidence to a mighty big test and you almost tremble for fear the man you believe in most is going to turn out a rascal, a rogue and a low-down, unprincipled graffer.

We all call America Christian and I guess she is as nations go, but if our reputation as a Christian nation had to stand on a good deal of our past record, the world would never get the idea that we are sick abed because we can't be good.

God wants the individual to be true and He wants the nation to be true. When I'm dead I'd rather have it said on my tombstone, "Here lies a man who was true to his convictions," than I would to have it read, "Here lies the President of the United States," if I had to get the Presidency by dipping my colors to a lot of pin-headed, weasel-souled hoodie politicians.

If you are professing a Christian man politics will never furnish you any excuse for drinking the cup of the Devil, and the law of your own personal life must be your law as the representative of the people; because the nation sins only through its leaders and through its people when it allows its leaders to carry on a dirty grafting business without calling them to account.

II. YOU SEE IT IN THE BUSINESS WORLD.

I stood in the New Orleans Cotton Exchange sometime ago and saw a lot of money-mad speculators nearly break themselves in two trying to buy and sell imaginary cotton. I thought one poor devil would burst a blood vessel with his frantic yells and disjoint himself with his wild gesticulations.

A woman said, "Now, just what are they doing?"

I said, "Gambling."

"But," she said, "I know a lot of nice people who are members of the church, who do business on the Board of Trade."

And I said, "I do too, gamblers—the most of them."

Legitimate Business.

I've got no kick against legitimate buying and selling on the Stock Exchange, but dealing in futures, buying and selling wheat you never see and never expect to see and speculating on the price, buying stocks on margin and dealing on short sales is a devilish, dirty business; and I don't care who engage in it.

And yet people will argue about its ethics just like they will about a game of poker. They say, "If a man wants to take a risk and both go into the game with their eyes open, where's the harm?"

Well, ask the laws of your state where the harm is. They'll tell you so quick it will make your head swim.

Some church members will keep their store open on Sunday and justify themselves by saying their competitors do it. But if your competitor drinks the cup of the Devil that don't give you any right to do anything but what you know God wants you to do.

If your old shebang is going to bust because you haven't got business ability enough to run it, keeping it open on Sunday isn't going to save it. It's all a lie.

Church members will get in debt and then argue their poverty as a reason for letting the grocery keeper sweat. A dead-beat is a 33rd degree dyed in the wool-stamped on the cork, blown in the bottle child of the Devil.

Pay your debts. God won't send you to hell if you can't pay. But that don't lessen your obligation any to the man you owe. Some of you ginks that have lost your credit around here smoke up and puff out and chew up and spit out enough tobacco in one year to go a good ways toward paying some of your debts.

"Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of Devils."

III. This tendency is seen especially in the social world.

This is the thing that got Corinth. I don't knock on society. All the beasts and all the birds go in bunches and God made us social beings. But why is it that every voice in pulpit and in press uplifted for the race has had it in for society. Because its chuck full of fools, that don't know where to stop, that don't know the difference between moderation and excess, they don't know the difference between decency and dirtiness.

Nefarious Social Doings.

The average society woman has about as little sense as God could well put in a human being and still let her pass for a woman. Its pretty much as a friend of mine down in Georgia used to say, if some of you'll fail in the water, you wouldn't need anybody to rescue you. Just spread up your handkerchief and you'll come sailing in; your head is so empty it'll float you to shore.

If you'd happen in on some of these frivolous functions of bon-ton society some afternoon pink team, or frappe affair, and commence to talk about anything that's real and worthy of thoughtful consideration they'd vote you a bore and tell you to "beat it."

Now it's mighty plain if you drink the cup of the Lord why you've got to be mighty careful when you rub up against the social world. You're in danger of being swept away. It'll carry you along with it.

When the World's Fair was on in Chicago a man was walking with his little boy along where they had one of those wooden imitations of the noted Ferris Wheel. The little fellow wanted to ride but the father told him he was afraid it wasn't safe. But the boy kept teasing his father until he bought the tickets and got in. In the box just in front of them were some drunken rowdies and the man didn't know they had given the owner some extra money to turn on the full power and let her out just to see how fast the old thing could go. And it started; round and round it went faster and faster while the rowdies laughed and shouted. The old thing commenced to groan and creak and shake, and the father with his boy got frightened half to death. He was bald headed but he could just feel the hair standing up on top of his head and the cold chills commenced to go down his back, but what could he do? He was in the thing and he had to keep up with it. He was traveling in pretty fast society but he kept up with the crowd because he couldn't help it.

That's what the Corinthians did and that's what you'll be doing if you're not careful, but you'll be drinking the cup of Devils when you do it.

You say, "Well, when you are in Rome, you must do as Rome does." No, you musn't. That's a lowdown, mean, contemptible definition of the way to live.

If you found your boy in a stale beer joint with a bunch of dirty loafers gambling over a jackpot, you'd cry, "My God, has it come to this!" But wait a minute and let me paint the pictures for you.

Society's Bad Start.

That boy of yours went a few years ago, by your sanction and possibly in your company, to some of your approved society affairs; maybe it was in your own home. You gathered about a table—it was mahogany; there was a Persian rug on the floor; Brussels Net curtains on the window, a brilliant candleabra and a French plate mirror. On the table or at one side is a cut glass dish—a prize that represents the value of somebody's money. The hostess produces some cards and for hours you play to win. You get thirsty and the maid comes in, passes around the punch or the frappe, and you're at it again until the stake's been won, and at a late hour or early hour in the morning you go home.

Now, let's paint the other picture as true to life as this one. It's in a dirty booze joint, and around the table sits a bunch of dissipated, red-eyed, God-forsaken, vicious men and young men. The table is pine, but that don't make any difference. The curtains are paint but that don't make any difference. The light reflectors are tin but that don't make any difference. The mirror is a cheap soap-be-decorated glass, but that don't make any difference. On the table is a jack-pot—there's money there, or chips that represent it. The cards are produced—just like the ones you used, the game is started—just like the one you played. They get thirsty and the bar-maid comes in and passes around the drinks and the game goes on until the stake is won, and at a late hour or early hour in the morning, they go home. Where is the difference?

Your boy matriculated in the parlor; he graduated in the other place. You know what Uncle Bobbie says in "That Printer of Udell's?" "Gamblin' church members ain't got no call to kick if their children play cards for money." You punch your boy's ticket for hell, and then you blame him for

You can argue till you're black in the face to justify yourself but when you have to do that it's a pretty good sign that you're getting mixed up in the wrong kind of business.

Can Murder Time.

You can murder time and character at the card table if you want to; you can keep a "gentleman's celler" if you choose, you can befool your mind with lust at a dirty theatrical performance if that is what you hank for. David went alone and danced and danced before the Lord but you can get in a crowd and dance half-naked before men if you like that kind of stuff—but when you're living that way, be honest now, and tell me do you think you are "drinking the cup of the Lord or the cup of Devils." It's the same old question of personal liberty and personal rights. Couldn't get along with wife or could not get along with husband and so I'll get a divorce or I'll stay in the home and make the best of it and let the others go their own sweet way.

And then you begin to justify yourself. You know the Bible is against divorce tooth and toe nail. It only allows one ground for separation.

But then you begin to argue and trump up a lot of other rubbish to justify yourself, when if you'd tell the truth, nine times out of ten the reason you want a divorce is so you can go and live in adultery with some other woman or man.

Bible and Divorce.

The word of God tells you mightily plain where to get off on this divorce and remarriage proposition. The Catholic Church has got us beat a whole block on the divorce question

That's another thing that'll rot this nation if we don't look out. We've had nearly a million divorces in the last twenty years. Think of it! To say nothing of the separations the law don't know anything about.

What's the remedy. I've been telling you. The religion of Jesus Christ. Live in the home if you profess to have it, and every thing will come out right. Or better than that, it will stay right in the first place. Some people, and you call yourselves Christians, too, live under the same roof and never speak to each other. You'd think you were in a deaf and dumb asylum. You think the wife's wrong and the wife thinks you're wrong. And you nurse your wounded feelings and make a martyr out of yourself and think how Christian-like you are in bearing it all and putting up with it. But you're drinking the cup of Devils. You're not living a Christian at all. You know the Bible's got no use for that sort of business. It says, if you're a Christian, go and get the thing fixed up. It don't debate the question one second as to who is right or wrong. It says, "You go whether you're wrong or whether you're right," and if both who are professing to drink the cup of the Lord would do that, heaven would smile on you home and it would be a palace of peace instead of the rough house that you've got most of the time.

There is only the ghost of an ember left.

Where the flame of our love burned high.

And only the ashes float slowly by.

Burying it deeper with every sigh.

The pale little ghost is left.

I wonder if we were to kneel quite low.

And should strive with the tenderest care,

To rescue that spark in the ashes there,

Would it glow again with its beauty rare—

If we were to kneel quite low?

Go home and get down on your knees together and get it fixed up.

And now I'm done. Mighty God if we say we are Christians, help us to be Christians.

Help us to quit trying to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of Devils.

How long do you suppose it would be before this old world rolled up to the feet of Jesus if the church would just practice the principles of Jesus and if we would be true to Him and live for Him and lie on the field of honor. God help us.

Making a Mechanical Head That Talks

IMAGINE the surprise you can give a friend by conducting him into a dark room (say the "Hall of Ghosts"). On the table is a skull. doing. Probably you have read about their "talking statues?" A mechanical head that talks is really not such a difficult device to make if you follow the instructions given in Practical Electricity by Estan Moen. This inventor calls this device a "telautophone," which, he says, is a word he coined himself.

Tele- is a Greek prefix meaning "at a distance." Auto- is a prefix generally meaning something mechanical. And phone, which may be said to be identical with talk. There you have it: telautophone is a machine that "mechanically talks at a distance."

"To make a telautophone," says Mr. Moen, "we shall not require such simple devices as the microphone or receiver. We shall go back to the time of the Egyptian magicians and do as they did. Whenever they made a thing they copied from Nature."

"So, to make the talker we must proceed along the lines of our physical mouth. In Figure 1, I have sketched a cross section of our 'built-in talking machine.' You will see how a simple sound coming up from the throat is 'murdered, butchered, bent and broken' by those pirates, the nasal tube, the tongue, teeth, lips, etc. You will see that almost all consonants are made by the thing I have labeled 'shutter' just above the tonsils. Also please note that the sounds m, n, r, l, s, z, f, h, which we commonly label as consonants are really vowels. Oh, yes, we can learn a lot of truth by analysis."

"Having analyzed the mouth, we'll consider the construction of one, entirely 'non-animalistic.' I've used my patience to draw Figure 2, showing the features. And you will need more patience to make it."

"As you see, the sound comes from a

HOW VOTING IS MADE EASY BY MACHINE

ON Tuesday, November 4, millions of voters will go to the polls to vote for the first time for the Presidential candidate of their choice. No doubt, there are among this vast number of first voters hundreds of thousands who will face this event with some nervousness, not to say trepidation, through fear of not voting correctly and expressing their exact preference. To all such the mechanical genius now offers relief in the form of a device that makes voting easy. At last there has been perfected a practical voting machine, which its inventor claims will save millions of hours of time for the people and vast sums to state, county and municipal governments. Many efforts have long been made by inventors in all parts of the country to meet this need and reap the sure rewards. Most of the devices, however, have been too complicated for practical purposes and others have proved unworkable.

With the need rendered imperative by law in New York State, where the adoption of voting machines has been made compulsory within two years, it is interesting to note that a voting machine which promises to meet every requirement at last has been invented and perfected. The device, which has been demonstrated before the Board of Elections in the Municipal Building, New York City, is the product of the brain and hand of Samuel R. Shoup, of Weehawken, N. J. The demonstrations resulted in favorable comment by members of the board and bids were invited for its installation in the city to meet the requirements of the state law.

The voting machine devised by the New Jersey inventor is simple, strong and built for durability. It is protected by an elaborate system of locks which precludes the possibility of successful tampering, either for the purpose of perpetrating election frauds or in a stupid spirit of mischief, and is fool-proof to a remarkable degree. Moreover, it enables each voter to see at a glance that his vote is counted. An important feature of the machine is that, by the turning of a key at the conclusion of the polling, the total figures of the vote for each candidate are shown at once, eliminating all the labor of counting and checking, making errors impossible.

Each election officer is provided with a key, while an additional key is kept in the office of the board of elections. The election officers, by the use of all their keys, can raise the face of the machine, but it cannot be closed again without the other key, making even the improbable collusion of an entire election board entirely futile.

"Voting made easy" would be a fitting slogan for this ingenious device, suggests a writer in Business Survey. The New York State Board of Voting Machine Commission, after observing demonstrations of Mr. Shoup's voting machine, made the following significant statement:

"The locking devices with which this machine is equipped remove to the farthest degree possible the possibility of fraudulent voting."

There are 2,800 polling places in New York City alone, and the equipment of all of these with voting machines before the expiration of the period allowed by the voting machine law is no small task.

A company has been formed for the manufacture of this voting machine, for which an enormous and rapidly growing demand is foreseen.

In many states the use of voting machines has been legalized and made optional with boards of election. In New York State the use of such machines has been made mandatory by law, and soon voting by the expensive, time wasting and necessarily inaccurate ballot method will be entirely illegal.

Make Your Own Ice at Home

TO many a housewife it seems absurd to be obliged to purchase ice right along in winter weather. Nevertheless she is obliged to do it in order to keep her provisions properly.

With a view to obviating this necessity Thomas Blair, of Togo, Minn., has invented an ice-making machine which is designed to enable the housewife to make nine cakes of clear ice for herself, of size suitable for the refrigerator, when the temperature is below freezing point outdoors.

The apparatus consists of two small rectangular tanks, one of which can be set inside of the other, while spaced from the latter at bottom and sides by bars that are screwed upon the inner receptacle. The outer tank is provided with four feet to stand upon.

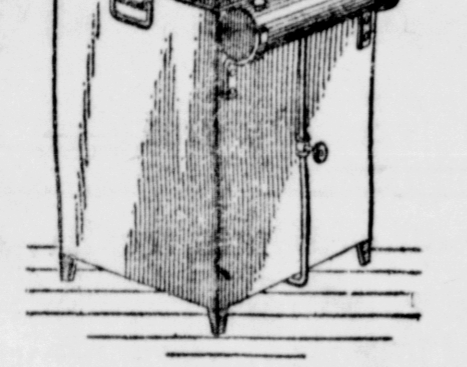

On one side of the outer tank, at its upper edge, is a cylindrical fuel container supported by a pair of brackets. From this container a small pipe, provided with a regulating valve, leads to the bottom of the outer tank for the purpose of delivering fuel oil to a burner beneath.

For use the inner tank is filled with water and placed outdoors to freeze. Some water is then put into the outer tank and the receptacle containing the new-made ice is put inside of it. The displacement of the water thereby accomplished causes the latter to ascend all around the inner tank, the object sought being that it may convey heat when the burner is lighted.

The burner being lighted, sufficient heat is presently generated all around the inner tank to loosen the cake of ice therein contained; and it is requisite thereupon merely to remove the inner tank, dump the cake of clear ice out of it, and transfer the ice to the refrigerator.

A New Dish-Washing Machine

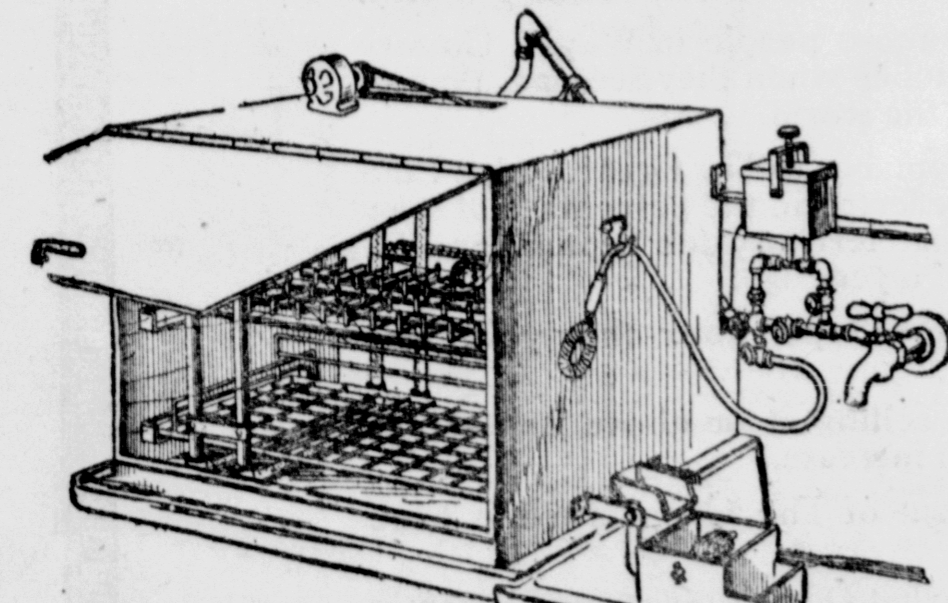

A NEW kind of dish-washing machine has been patented by a Kansas City man, Eric W. Bacharach.

It is a rectangular box, to be set upon the washboard adjoining a sink, and contains two horizontal skeleton frames for the dishes to rest upon, with a number of little pipes to deliver a spray of water.

In its simpler form, for use in an ordinary household, the pipe that supplies the spray is connected to the nozzle of the hot water faucet. The machine, however, coelves an admixture of the soap solution and passes on into the washing chamber, where it is distributed in a spray, as above described. When the dishes have had enough soap the flow of the solution is shut off and pure hot water accomplishes the rest of the cleansing. Then the door that covers the front of the washing compartment is opened wide to allow the dishes to dry themselves.

A supplementary valve, controlled by a is meant more particularly for use in restaurants, and the preferred arrangement is to attach the supply pipe in such wise as to tap the water from behind the faucet.

The drawing will show better than any description the arrangement of the piping and also the box-shaped receptacle (above) that is filled with a solution of soap. The turning of a knob opens a valve to permit the soap solution to flow down into the pipe that carries the hot water from the faucet.

Thus the water from the faucet return-knob, allows the hot water to flow through a short rubber tube that terminates in a ring-shaped scrubber. The latter serves to help clean silverware, which, placed in a box inside the sink, beneath the outlet for waste water from the washing compartment, is divested by that water of most of its dirt.

The washing of the dishes may be facilitated by causing the skeleton frames to agitate themselves back and forth horizontally, such a movement being easily communicated to them by the use of an electric motor.

Tractor That Digs Post Holes

ONE of the little jobs that has always cost more than its magnitude would appear to warrant is the digging of post-holes and other excavations whose diameter has been too small to permit rapid and effective digging with standard tools. Of recent years there has been a tendency toward the use of special machinery designed for this purpose; and this has been largely fostered by the existence of so many companies whose business involves a great deal of post or pole erection. Where the farmer with his fence has to be satisfied with the awkward use of the shovel in digging post-holes, the telephone and telegraph companies with thousands of holes to be dug a year can and indeed must have something better.

The machine described in The Scientific American is a modification of the four-wheel-drive truck or tractor, and is put out by the leading manufacturer of this vehicle. It digs holes from six inches up to four feet in diameter, and down to seven feet in depth. The digging time per hole varies from 1 1/2 to 10 minutes, according to the condition and nature of the soil. The machine is in very fact an earth borer; it employs an auger as cutting tool. The sizes offered on stock models are 18, 20, 24, 30 and 48 inches. After each "bite" the auger is raised and revolved quite rapidly, flinging off the dirt by centrifugal force. Otherwise it would jam before going far.

The machine does not stop with the boring of the hole, but is also equipped for planing it. Thirty-five foot poles can easily be set with the standard model, rated as to the six-foot size. The so-called nine-foot model will set poles up to 70 feet high, having for this purpose a special derrick and higher tower. The machine also pulls old poles where these exist.

The power for the earth-boring machine comes from the truck engine by means of a take-off shaft at the rear of the transmission. Its frame is rotatably arranged on a turn-table, making it possible to bore holes on either side and on the rear of the truck, and obviating the necessity for difficult maneuvering of the outfit into working position. The turn-table operates by power and will travel from one extreme position to the other in fifteen seconds.

For boring anchor holes for cables, etc., the tower may be tilted into any desired angular position, this bit of manipulation being performed by means of a worm gear. In transport the same worm is used to tilt the tower forward toward the driver's seat.

How Life Rafts Are Made of Kapok

IN the making of life-rafts naval officials have substituted kapok for cork. It is much better for the purpose.

Even for stuffing mattresses it is now employed in the service. A kapok mattress will uphold a man in the water.

Practically nothing was known about kapok until the United States took possession of the Philippines. The tree grows there. Kapok is a fluffy fiber found in the pods of the tree. It is one of the lightest things in the world.

Because of the buoyancy it gives, kapok is used to fill life-preservers, swimming wings, ocean waistcoats, etc. It has almost entirely replaced cork for life-belts.

As stuffing for pillows and cushions it serves admirably. It is so elastic that a cushion filled with it and placed under a heavy weight will instantly spring into its original shape when the weight is removed. The quantity required to stuff a mattress is considerably less than of any other material.

Attempts to use kapok for textile purposes have not been very successful. The fiber is too short and brittle. It can be spun satisfactorily only when mixed with a large proportion of long-staple cotton.

For surgical dressings it is most valuable, by reason of its lightness, dryness and elasticity.

The Philippines do not produce much of the commercial supply of kapok. Nearly all of it comes from Java, where the tree is largely grown under cultivation.

What the Inventors Are Doing

A SIPHON is now offered to solve the problem of getting the cream off the top of the milk in the bottle. The telescopic arm enables it to be "set" to the line between the milk, or to any other desired point. If inserted in the bottle according to directions it is self-starting; and it stops automatically when the bottle is drained to the level at which the siphon has been inserted.

The carrying of extra bulbs for automobile lamps has been a difficult matter without a certain amount of breakage. For this purpose a metal box is specially constructed to contain a number of bulbs and holds them in such a manner that they will not roll around or be damaged by the constant vibrations of the car. Steel springs and a locking device hold the bulbs securely.

One of the latest devices for increasing the joy of motor boating is the electric capstan. The power for the device is furnished by a fractional-horsepower motor which is geared to the snubbing drum. All gearing is in oil and the parts are constructed of bronze. Control of the motor is through a motor installed in the deck. The motor will operate from the lighting storage batteries.

A Hand Mirror for the Motorist

ALTOGETHER novel is a little mirror to be worn on the back of the hand by motorists, not for admiring themselves but to help in driving. It is the idea of a Los Angeles man, William A. Holquist.

The mirror is meant to be adjusted upon the back of the hand, being held in place by a springy strip of metal or celluloid. It enables the automobilist, while looking ahead, to see whatever may be in the rear.

For convenience it is made of small size, but somewhat convex, in order to enlarge whatever it may reflect. The drawing shows it attached to a hand with fingers bent as if grasping a steering wheel.

The driver using this device may, when he so wishes, stretch out an arm in order to see, with the mirror's aid, objects or occurrences in the rear of his car.

The mirror is provided with a handle which extends at such an angle that the driver can press it with his thumb, thus causing the reflecting glass to face in any desired direction. To manipulate it in this way he does not need to relinquish his grip on the steering wheel.

The inventor suggests that the contrivance might be used to advantage by traffic policemen, who would thereby be enabled to keep in view whatever may be going on behind them.

The wrist watch now has a rival in a miniature mirror worn around the wrist. This very latest novelty for Milady also has a small kerchief attached to it and is claimed to be more convenient and compact, especially for the beaches.

The "wrist mirror," which has become the latest fad, is only the size of a quarter, but is so constructed that it reflects the whole face.

How the Mirror Is Adjusted to the Back of the Motorist's Hands.

Studying the Human Breath

THE human lungs take in oxygen with the air in breathing. Also nitrogen, which is four-fifths of the air. So far as known, the nitrogen has no value for breathing purposes, except to dilute the oxygen, which would otherwise be too strong.

The lungs are continually giving out carbonic acid and water with the breath. On any cold day in winter one may see

As the rider operates the pedals against a resistance that is electrically measured the expired air from his lungs is delivered into a mouthpiece from which it passes through pipes and is forced by a rotary blower through sulphuric acid and soda lime to separate out the carbonic acid and water it contains. The quantities of these elements are afterwards measured. The man's nose is held in a clip so that he cannot breathe through it. But the water, forming a little cloud of mist—a bit of fog—one might call it—that emerges from the breathing passages of any person walking along the street.

Exercise increases the quantity of carbonic acid and water given out by the lungs. To determine these quantities with accuracy, relatively to a given amount of energy delivered, a new apparatus employs a stationary bicycle on which a rider is mounted.

oxygen from a tank (passed through an accurate meter) is supplied to the mouthpiece to freshen the air for breathing. That is to say the man breathes the same air over and over again, but it is kept fresh with a continual supply of oxygen. It is a circulating current of air passing through a pipe. He breathes into the current as it passes, receiving from it the freshened air and delivering into it the air exhaled from his lungs.

Making a Mechanical Head That Talks

IMAGINE the surprise you can give a friend by conducting him into a dark room (say the "Hall of Ghosts"). On the table is a skull. You secretly close a switch, when the skull will begin to talk and move its mouthpieces in a very lifelike manner. Which is just what the pains-taking Egyptians were famous for

Tele— is a Greek prefix meaning "at a distance." Auto— is a prefix generally meaning something mechanical. And phone, which may be said to be identical with talk. There you have it; telautophone is a machine that "mechanically talks at a distance."

"To make a telautophone," says Mr. Moen, "we shall not require such simple devices as the microphone or receiver. We shall go back to the time of the Egyptian magicians and do as they did. Whenever they made a thing they copied from Nature."

"So, to make the talker we must proceed along the lines of our physical mouth. In Figure 1, I have sketched a cross section of our 'built-in talking machine.' You will see how a simple sound coming up from the throat is 'murdered, butchered, bent and broken' by those pirates, the nasal tube, the tongue, teeth, lips, etc. You will see that almost all consonants are made by the thing I have labeled 'shutter' just above the tonsils. Also please note that the sounds m, n, r, l, s, z, f, h, which we commonly label as consonants are really vowels. Oh, yes, we can learn a lot of truth by analysis."

"Having analyzed the mouth, we'll consider the construction of one, entirely 'non-animalistic.' I've used my patience to draw Figure 2, showing the features. And you will need more patience to make it."

CHESTER HIGH GRIDDERS LOSE

Scoring three touchdowns in the first half of the game, the Burgettstown High school football team hung up a lead that Chester high school tried desperately to overcome but fell short, losing to the Pennsylvanians by an 18-13 score at Burgettstown Friday afternoon.

A hard hitting backfield coupled with a line that held against the Chester attack resulted in the Burgettstown victory. The home team was also favored with the breaks in the first half and intercepted a number of Chester forward passes.

In the third quarter of the game Chester came back with a grim determination to hold the Washington county backfield in check and succeeded, neither team scoring.

Soon after the start of the fourth quarter, Bennett grabbed a forward pass and dashed 30 yards for Chester's first touchdown. DeLong failed to kick goal.

Right on the heels of this play, Pinney, Chester halfback caught a pass and gave fans the big thrill of the game when he ran 70 yards, placing the oval across the goal line. DeLong kicked goal. Chester's efforts to shove over another touchdown were in vain.

Chester will play the Toronto High school eleven at Rock Springs park next Saturday. The Toronto eleven, which recently defeated the New Cumberland team, will give the locals a hard fight. The Chester junior high school eleven will play the Lincoln grade school team from East Liverpool in a preliminary.

Roper Summons Full Power To Prevent Another Defeat At Hands of Rockne Eleven

South Bend Irish, However, Are Favorites in Impending Battle; Tigers Will Attempt to Break up Westerners' Speed Attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 25.—Princeton today awaited with dangerous calm the hour when it will send a grimly determined Tiger outfit on the field to face Notre Dame in what the boxing game would term "a grudge fight."

No stage villain, with nefarious designs upon the inn keeper's daughter, ever plotted another's downfall as Princeton is doing at this moment. A year ago Notre Dame came to Tigertown and a few hours later departed, leaving behind it a college community still reeling under the blow of a 25 to 2 defeat. This was nothing less than the majesty of the Big Three figures thinks and the Tigers today are out for their revenge. They probably won't get it. Notre Dame, facing its second big eastern team in as many Saturdays will step out for the game in a somewhat crippled condition, but it still remains both the sentimental and the speculative favorite. The back bone of its defense lost several vertebrae when Adam Walsh bogged down with a pair of broken hands, but Notre Dame has speed, Notre Dame skill and Notre Dame intelligence was figured to bring another victory for Rockne.

Bill Roper, Princeton coach, has gone on record to the effect that his team will break up the running attack of the great Notre Dame backfield, Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Leyden and by his choice of Bartlett over McMillen for center indicated that he plans to match speed with speed. But Princeton, although a much improved outfit over 1923, may find that it lacks the downright class of the Irish. Its best chances seemed to be that Notre Dame may have been so badly punished in the Army game that the fine edge of its speed may be gone today. The Irish have a comparatively light team and cannot stand up under too much pounding. The heaviest man on the South Bend eleven weighs 186 pounds. The Princeton line alone averages 189.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPECTED TO WIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—With West Virginia favorite to win the Mountaineer eleven was to meet Centre college, famous whirlwind of Kentucky of a few years ago, at the Polo grounds here this afternoon. Centre was not expected to do more than furnish an interesting argument for the West Virginians.

HARVARD IS IN FOR BUSY DAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 25.—Great preparations have been made by the Harvard football team for its meeting here this afternoon with Dartmouth. Coaches believe Dartmouth has one of the East's strongest teams and are eager to erase the 1923 set back when Dartmouth won, 16 to 0.

CHICAGO AND OHIO STATE ELEVENS BATTLE TO RETAIN CLEAN RECORDS

CAPTAIN "TEE" YOUNG

When Ohio State and Chicago finished tuning up for their annual game at Columbus, Oct. 25, both had clean slates in the conference standings and therefore had hopes of battling it out with Illinois for the championship. Both teams meet Illinois later.

OHIO-CHICAGO CLASH TODAY

Battle for Chance at Illini and Conference Title.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25.—Occupying the center of the Western Conference championship stage, Coach Alonzo Stagg's Chicago University eleven was here today to clash in Ohio State stadium with the Scarlet and Gray.

Chicago was determined to hurdle the Ohioans this afternoon and retain a status equal to that of Illinois, whom the Cook county aggregation hopes to defeat November 8, for the lead in the championship race.

Coach Wile's men were equally confident that the Maroons would have a clean conference slate after the game today, in accordance with their own championship aspirations.

Wile's men were expected to exhibit everything they have in the forward pass line in an attempt to neutralize the yardage the Chicagoans may make through line plunging. If the Ohioans succeed in this, their followers are predicting they can win, but Chicago was the general favorite.

Neither team has had its real line crossed in a conference game this season. Ohio State has not been scored against in any contest, but Missouri and Brown have counted against Chicago.

TORONTO TIGERS AT MARTINS FERRY

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—The Toronto Tigers make their first out-of-town jaunt Sunday afternoon when they go to Martins Ferry to play the Queensboro Collegians. Emil Mayer of East Liverpool, end of last year's team who was secured this week after starting the season with Georgetown at Washington, D. C., will probably start the game for the Tigers.

The following week's game is still unsettled, though it is probable the Tigers will play either the McKeesport Olympics, the team that beat Steubenville, or the Philadelphia professionals.

Newell's Black Jack Is Derby Victor at Trials in Saxonburg

Turning in an unusually brilliant performance at the Central Beagle field trials this week in Saxonburg, Pa. "Newell's Black Jack," beagle owned by Edwin Wells, Jr., increased its list of victories for the present season with a first place in the 15-inch derby.

The beagle completed against a field of 34 other stars of that class and easily demonstrated its superiority. The Central trials are considered second in importance only to the national trials, and, consequently, "Newell's Black Jack's" victory is considered noteworthy.

The beagle will be entered in the Highland trials at Greenfield, O., which will be held within the next two weeks.

KIECKHEFER IS BEATEN BY HOPPE

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Willie Hoppe, balk line champion, stands out today as a master of the more difficult three cushion game. He defeated Augie Kieckhefer, one of the stars of the angle game, in their four-day match by a score of 400 to 279.

In winning, Hoppe averaged better than one, requiring but 393 innings for the 400 points. Hoppe won all eight blocks of 50 points each. Yesterday's scores were 50 to 38 and 40 to 49.

RECORDS WILL NEED REVISION

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Several old scores were due for an accounting and the present season's record of two undefeated and untied teams was ready for revision when Lafayette, one of the strongest teams in the east, and Washington and Jefferson, both four times victors thus far, met at Yankee stadium this afternoon.

Half Back Basista, the only cripple on the President's list, may get back in the lineup today, Coach Dave Morrow said. Lafayette ruled favorite in the advance billings.

Eclipse Sluggers Hit Bill Ashbaugh Hard And Defeat Maroons-But 'Twas In 1889

W. T. McNutt, Batting Ace of Losers, Held to Single Blow; John McShane and Kelsey Bennett Hammer Ball—Do You Remember?

It all happened back in 1889, on April 15, to be exact, and undoubtedly the Maroons were feeling the effects of early spring weather. But, be that as it may, the Eclipse hung up a notable victory in that engagement, as recorded in the baseball history in the possession of W. D. Campbell, of Fourth street, who is now sojourning in Los Angeles. The harassed scorekeeper turned in a tally of 28 to 1, in favor of the Eclipse.

Although these diamond heroes performed 35 years ago, more or less, the memory of those hectic encounters still is fresh in their minds.

George "Toadix" Carey was playing first for the Eclipse and had two hits besides playing errorless ball in the field. Carey later was with Baltimore and Washington.

There was also Alf Shaw, who held down the hot corner for the Eclipse, who went up to the Chicago White Sox, collected five hits off Bill Ashbaugh in this particular game, and later became a professional baseball star. Win Mercer was in right field for the losers, with William McNutt in center.

A number of the men who played in this game have answered the final call but will never be forgotten by their baseball comrades who made East Liverpool diamond history at West End park.

Roper Summons Full Power To Prevent Another Defeat At Hands of Rockne Eleven

South Bend Irish, However, Are Favorites in Impending Battle; Tigers Will Attempt to Break up Westerners' Speed Attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 25.—Princeton today awaited with dangerous calm the hour when it will send a grimly determined Tiger outfit on the field to face Notre Dame in what the boxing game would term "a grudge fight."

No stage villain, with nefarious designs upon the inn keeper's daughter, ever plotted another's downfall as Princeton is doing at this moment.

A year ago Notre Dame came to Tiger town and a few hours later departed, leaving behind it a college community still reeling under the blow of a 25 to 2 defeat. This was nothing less than the majesty as the Big Three figures think and the Tigers today are out for their revenge. They probably won't get it. Notre Dame, facing its second big eastern team in as many Saturdays will step out for the game in a somewhat crippled condition, but it still remains both the sentimental and the speculative favorite.

The back bone of its defense lost several vertebrae when Adam Walsh barged down with a pair of broken hands, but Notre Dame has speed, Notre Dame skill and Notre Dame intelligence was figured to bring another victory for Rockne.

Bill Roper, Princeton coach, has gone on record to the effect that his team will break up the running attack of the great Notre Dame backfield, Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Leyden and by his choice of Bartell over McMillen for center indicated that he plans to match speed with speed. But Princeton, although a much improved outfit over 1923, may find that it lacks the downright class of the Irish.

Its best chances seemed to be that Notre Dame may have been so badly punished in the Army game that the fine edge of its speed may be gone today. The Irish have a comparatively light team and cannot stand up under too much pounding. The heaviest man on the South Bend eleven weighs 186 pounds. The Princeton line alone averages 189.

But a little thing like weight doesn't concern Notre Dame. It runs the ends, slides off tackle, and when experience demands, it tosses forward passes in a manner that has dazzled more than one eastern defense.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPECTED TO WIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—With West Virginia favored to win the Mountain eleven was to meet Centre college, famous whirlwind of Kentucky of a few years ago, at the Polo grounds here this afternoon.

Centre was not expected to do more than furnish an interesting argument for the West Virginians.

Only 18 players were brought from Danville by Coach Myers.

HARVARD IS IN FOR BUSY DAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 25.—Great preparations have been made by the Harvard football team for its meeting here this afternoon with Dartmouth. Coaches believe Dartmouth has one of the East's strongest teams and are eager to erase the 1923 set back when Dartmouth won, 16 to 0.

CHICAGO AND OHIO STATE ELEVEN BATTLE TO RETAIN CLEAN RECORDS

CAPTAIN 'TEE' YOUNG

CAPTAIN FRANKLIN GOWDY

OHIO-CHICAGO CLASH TODAY

Battle for Chance at Illini and Conference Title.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25.—Occupying the center of the Western Conference championship stage, Coach Alonzo Stagg's Chicago University eleven was here today to clash in Ohio State stadium with the Scarlet and Gray.

Chicago was determined to hurdle the Ohioans this afternoon and retain a status equal to that of Illinois, whom the Cook county aggregation hopes to defeat November 8, for the lead in the championship race.

Coach Wilce's men were equally confident that the Maroons would not have a clean conference slate after the game today, in accordance with their own championship aspirations.

Wilce's men were expected to exhibit everything they have in the forward pass line in an attempt to neutralize the yardage the Chicagoans may make through line plunging. If the Ohioans succeed in this, their followers are predicting they can win, but Chicago was the general favorite.

Neither team has had its goal line crossed in a conference game this season. Ohio State has not been scored against in any contest, but Missouri and Brown have counted against Chicago.

The probable lineup:

Chicago	Ohio State
Quinlan	L.E.
Nichols	L.T.
Kuttler	L.G.

TORONTO TIGERS AT MARTINS FERRY

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—The Toronto Tigers make their first out-of-town jaunt Sunday afternoon when they go to Martins Ferry to play the Queensboro Collegians. Emil Mayer of East Liverpool, end of last year's team who was secured this week after starting the season with Georgetown at Washington, D. C., will probably start the game for the Tigers.

The following week's game is still unsettled, though it is probable the Tigers will play either the McKeesport Olympics, the team that beat Steubenville, or the Philadelphia Professionals.

Newell's Black Jack Is Derby Victor at Trials in Saxonburg

Turning in an unusually brilliant performance at the Central Beagle field trials this week in Saxonburg, Pa., "Newell's Black Jack," beagle owned by Edwin Wells, Jr., increased its list of victories for the present season with a first place in the 15-inch derby.

The beagle completed against a field of 34 other stars of that class and easily demonstrated its superiority. The Central trials are considered second in importance only to the national trials, and, consequently, "Newell's Black Jack's" victory is considered noteworthy.

The beagle will be entered in the Highland trials at Greenfield, O., which will be held within the next two weeks.

Roper Summons Full Power To Prevent Another Defeat At Hands of Rockne Eleven

South Bend Irish, However, Are Favorites in Impending Battle; Tigers Will Attempt to Break up Westerners' Speed Attack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 25.—Princeton today awaited with dangerous calm the hour when it will send a grimly determined Tiger outfit on the field to face Notre Dame in what the boxing game would term "a grudge fight."

No stage villain, with nefarious designs upon the inn keeper's daughter, ever plotted another's downfall as Princeton is doing at this moment. A year ago Notre Dame came to Tigertown and a few hours later departed, leaving behind it a college community still reeling under the blow of a 25 to 2 defeat. This was nothing less than a majestic as the Big Three figures think and the Tigers today are out for their revenge. They probably won't get it. Notre Dame, facing its second big eastern team in as many Saturdays will step out for the game in a somewhat crippled condition, but it still remains both the sentimental and the speculative favorite. The back bone of its defense lost several vertebrae when Adam Walsh bogged down with a pair of broken hands, but Notre Dame has speed, Notre Dame skill and Notre Dame intelligence was figured to bring another victory for Rockne.

Bill Roper, Princeton coach, has gone on record to the effect that his team will break up the running attack of the great Notre Dame backfield, Stuhldreier, Miller, Crowley and Leyden and by his choice of Bartoli over McMillen for center indicated that he plans to match speed with speed. But Princeton, although a much improved outfit over 1923, may find that it lacks the downright class of the Irish. Its best chances seemed to be that Notre Dame may have been so badly punished in the Army game that the fine edge of its speed may be gone today. The Irish have a comparatively light team and cannot stand up under too much pounding. The heaviest man on the South Bend eleven weighs 186 pounds. The Princeton line alone averages 189.

WEST VIRGINIA EXPECTED TO WIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—With West Virginia favorite to win the Mountaineer eleven was to meet Centre college, famous whirlwind of Kentucky of a few years ago, at the Polo grounds here this afternoon. Centre was not expected to do more than furnish an interesting argument for the West Virginians.

Only 18 players were brought from Danville by Coach Myers.

HARVARD IS IN FOR BUSY DAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 25.—Great preparations have been made by the Harvard football team for its meeting here this afternoon with Dartmouth. Coaches believe Dartmouth has one of the East's strongest teams and are eager to erase the 1923 set back when Dartmouth won, 16 to 0.

CHICAGO AND OHIO STATE ELEEVNS BATTLE TO RETAIN CLEAN RECORDS

CAPTAIN T. E. YOUNG

When Ohio State and Chicago finished tuning up for their annual game at Columbus, Oct. 25, both had clean slates in the conference standings and therefore had hopes of battling it out with Illinois for the championship. Both teams meet Illinois later.

OHIO-CHICAGO CLASH TODAY

Battle for Chance at Illini and Conference Title.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 25.—Occupying the center of the Western Conference championship stage, Coach Alonzo Stagg's Chicago University eleven was here today to clash in Ohio State stadium with the Scarlet and Gray.

Chicago was determined to hurdle the Ohioans this afternoon and retain a status equal to that of Illinois, whom the Cook county aggregation hopes to defeat November 8, for the lead in the championship race.

Coach Wilco's men were equally confident that the Maroons would not have a clean conference slate after the game today, in accordance with their own championship aspirations.

Wilco's men were expected to exhibit everything they have in the forward pass line in an attempt to neutralize the yardage the Chicagoans may make through line plunging. If the Ohioans succeed in this, their followers are predicting they can win, but Chicago was the general favorite.

Neither team has had its goal line crossed in a conference game this season. Ohio State has not been scored against in any contest, but Missouri and Brown have counted against Chicago.

TORONTO TIGERS AT MARTINS FERRY

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—The Toronto Tigers make their first out-of-town jaunt Sunday afternoon when they go to Martins Ferry to play the Queensboro Collegians. Emil Mayer of East Liverpool, end of last year's team who was secured this week after starting the season with Georgetown at Washington, D. C., will probably start the game for the Tigers.

The following week's game is still unsettled, though it is probable the Tigers will play either the McKeesport Olympics, the team that beat Steubenville, or the Philadelphia professionals.

Newell's Black Jack Is Derby Victor at Trials in Saxonburg

Turning in an unusually brilliant performance at the Central Beagle field trials this week in Saxonburg, Pa., "Newell's Black Jack," beagle owned by Edw. Wells, Jr., increased its list of victories for the present season with a first place in the 15-inch derby.

The beagle completed against a field of 24 other stars of that class and easily demonstrated its superiority. The Central trials are considered second in importance only to the national trials, and, consequently, "Newell's Black Jack's" victory is considered noteworthy.

The beagle will be entered in the Highland trials at Greenfield, O., which will be held within the next two weeks.

KIECKHEFER IS BEATEN BY HOPPE

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Willie Hoppe, balk line champion, stands out today as a master of the more difficult three cushion game. He defeated Augie Kieckhefer, one of the stars of the angle game, in their four-day match by a score of 400 to 279. In winning, Hoppe averaged better than one, requiring but 393 innings for the 400 points. Hoppe won all eight blocks of 50 points each. Yesterday's scores were 50 to 38 and 40 to 40.

RECORDS WILL NEED REVISION

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Several old scores were due for an accounting and the present season's record of two undefeated and untied teams was ready for revision when Lafayette, one of the strongest teams in the east, and Washington and Jefferson, both four times victors thus far, met at Yankee stadium this afternoon.

Half Back Basista, the only cripple on the President's list, may get back in the lineup today, Coach Dave Morrow said. Lafayette ruled favorite in the advance billings.

Eclipse Sluggers Hit Bill Ashbaugh Hard And Defeat Maroons-But 'Twas In 1889

W. T. McNutt, Batting Ace of Losers, Held to Single Blow; John McShane and Kelsey Bennett Hammer Ball—Do You Remember?

It all happened back in 1889, on April 15, to be exact, and undoubtedly the Maroons were feeling the effects of early spring weather. But, be that as it may, the Eclipse hung up a notable victory in that engagement, as recorded in the baseball history in the possession of W. D. Campbell, of Fourth street, who is now sojourning in Los Angeles. The harassed scorekeeper turned in a tally of 28 to 1, in favor of the Eclipse.

Although these diamond heroes performed 35 years ago, more or less, the memory of those hectic encounters still is fresh in their minds.

George "Toadix" Carey was playing first for the Eclipse and had two hits besides playing errorless ball in the field. Carey later was with Baltimore and Washington.

There was also Alf Shaw, who held down the hot corner for the Eclipse, who went up to the Chicago White Sox, and Eddie Hanlon, who by the way, collected five hits off Bill Ashbaugh in this particular game, and later became a professional baseball star. Win Mercer was in right field for the losers, with William McNutt in center.

A number of the men who played in this game have answered the final call but will never be forgotten by their baseball comrades who made East Liverpool diamond history at West End park.

Here is the box score of the Eclipse nine's victory:

KIECKHEFER IS BEATEN BY HOPPE

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Willie Hoppe, balk line champion, stands out today as a master of the more difficult three cushion game. He defeated Augie Kieckhefer, one of the stars of the angle game, in their four-day match by a score of 400 to 279. In winning, Hoppe averaged better than one, requiring but 395 innings for the 400 points. Hoppe won all eight blocks of 50 points each. Yesterday's scores were 50 to 38 and 40 to 49.

RECORDS WILL NEED REVISION

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Several old scores were due for an accounting and the present season's record of two undefeated and untied teams was ready for revision when Lafayette, one of the strongest teams in the east, and Washington and Jefferson, both four times victors thus far, met at Yankee stadium this afternoon.

Half Back Basista, the only cripple on the President's list, may get back in the lineup today, Coach Dave Morrow said. Lafayette ruled favorite in the advance billings.

Eclipse Sluggers Hit Bill Ashbaugh Hard And Defeat Maroons-But 'Twas In 1889

W. T. McNutt, Batting Ace of Losers, Held to Single Blow; John McShane and Kelsey Bennett Hammer Ball—Do You Remember?

It all happened back in 1889, on April 15, to be exact, and undoubtedly the Maroons were feeling the effects of early spring weather. But, be that as it may, the Eclipse hung up a notable victory in that engagement, as recorded in the baseball history in the possession of W. D. Campbell, of Fourth street, who is now sojourning in Los Angeles. The harassed scorekeeper turned in a tally of 28 to 1, in favor of the Eclipse.

Although these diamond heroes performed 35 years ago, more or less, the memory of those hectic encounters still is fresh in their minds.

George "Toadix" Carey was playing first for the Eclipse and had two hits besides playing errorless ball in the field. Carey later was with Baltimore and Washington.

There was also Alf Shaw, who held down the hot corner for the Eclipse, who went up to the Chicago White Sox, and Eddie Hanlon, who by the way, collected five hits off Bill Ashbaugh in this particular game, and later became a professional baseball star. Win Mercer was in right field for the losers, with William McNutt in center.

A number of the men who played in this game have answered the final call but will never be forgotten by their baseball comrades who made East Liverpool diamond history at West End park.

Here is the box score of the Eclipse nine's victory:

'Trial Honeymoon' Comes Here From Summer Run in Chicago

Joseph M. Gaite's Musical Comedy is Attraction at Ceramic Theatre Tuesday Evening.

The Jos. M. Gaite's musical comedy of youth, "A Trial Honeymoon," is due at the Ceramic theatre Tuesday evening and it is coming here almost direct from its all-summer run at the La Salle theatre in Chicago. It has a very pleasing and laughable story of a modern young woman, who says "she will" and "she won't," and who fails to obey her ambitious aunt in the matter of marriage to a young man whom she dislikes. She finally yields to the idea of a trial matrimonial experience with the chap, made at the suggestion of a "nutty" young woman whose college life has imbued with romance her rather unusual views.

Harold Orlob wrote the book and the tunes, and the play has pleased Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City and Dayton and is now playing only a limited number of cities to the Broadway opening in New York. "A Trial Honeymoon" is a play of youth, and it is acted by a youthful cast, all of them selected by Mr. Gaite, who is a past master at the art of know who's who in the show game.

John Hennings, Charles Silber, Arnold Gluck, Joseph McCallum, Frank Gardner, Winona Winter, Genevieve McCormick, Alice Hills, Bernice Speer, Julia Steger complete the cast of interesting principals. Misses McCormick and Steger lead in charming dance numbers, artistically staged, and the chorus of girls puts the stamp of youth and beauty on the show.

There are many tuneful hits, among them being "Mating Time," "The Petting Party" and "Mountain Moon."

CHURCH TO ACT ON WAR ISSUE

Is Christian Justified in Fighting? Asks Lutheran Meet.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—To decide whether a Christian is ever justified in going to war is one of the difficult problems that was submitted this morning to the biennial convention of the United Lutheran church in America at its session here. Five hundred 2,800 Lutheran congregations, are called upon to define the position of the church on that point.

The war issue comes before the convention in the form of four memorials from as many different synods which have already taken their attitude on that question. The issue was raised also by the committee on Moral and Social Welfare which includes in its membership some of the most advanced progressives in the Lutheran church organization. This committee is headed by the Rev. E. P. Pfatfelcher of Reading, Pa.

Several months ago the committee adopted the statement that it believed that the assertion in the famous Augsburg Confession, formulated 400 years ago, that "Christians may engage in just wars" was a correct interpretation of the teachings of Jesus Christ.

This caused a protest from three of the synods which are constituents of the United Lutheran Church in America. They have adopted memorials emphatically opposing the idea that Christians would be justified in going to war. These memorials were submitted to the Lutheran convention today by Dr. M. G. G. Scherer, its secretary. The memorials came from the Pittsburgh Synod, the New York and New England Synod, and the Minnesota Synod of Pennsylvania. Each of these bears a strong group of Lutheran leaders who are determined to put the Lutheran church on record as opposed to war instead of its justification. One of the most active of these exponents of peace is the Rev. Howard R. Gold of New Rochelle, N. Y., who originated the memorial adopted by the New York and New England synod.

Lutheran leaders expect a lively clash in the convention when this issue arises for debate on the floor next Tuesday. Oratorical fireworks are believed to be in prospect as the opposing leaders are ready to go to battle in the convention if not on fields of war.

Sues For $50,000

ELYRIA.—Adelaide Farmer, Cleveland, asked $50,000 damages in a suit filed against the Lorain County Commissioners, claiming to have been permanently injured on August 5, when she fell over a forty foot embankment into a river north of Amherst. She alleges she was attacked by a Cleveland youth while riding in an automobile, jumped out of the machine and in attempting to escape, slipped into a ditch and then rolled over the embankment. The petition alleges the county commissioners were negligent in not fencing off the embankment.

CHURCH TO ACT ON WAR ISSUE

Is Christian Justified in Fighting? Asks Lutheran Meet.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—To decide whether a Christian is ever justified in going to war is one of the difficult problems that was submitted this morning to the biennial convention of the United Lutheran church in America at its session here. Five hundred 2,800 Lutheran congregations, are called upon to define the position of the church on that point.

The war issue comes before the convention in the form of four memorials from as many different synods which have already taken their attitude on that question. The issue was raised also by the committee on Morals and Social Welfare which includes in its membership some of the most advanced progressives in the Lutheran church organization. This committee is headed by the Rev. E. P. Pratt, pastor of Reading, Pa.

Several months ago the committee adopted the statement that it believed that the assertion in the famous Augsburg Confession, formulated 400 years ago, that "Christians may engage in just wars" was a correct interpretation of the teachings of Jesus Christ.

This caused a protest from three of the synods which are constituents of the United Lutheran Church in America. They have adopted memorials emphatically opposing the idea that Christians would be justified in going to war. These memorials were submitted to the Lutheran convention today by Dr. M. G. G. Scherer, its secretary. The memorials came from the Pittsburgh Synod, the New York and New England Synod, and the Minnesota Synod of Pennsylvania. Each of these bears a strong group of Lutheran leaders who are determined to put the Lutheran church on record as opposed to war instead of its justification. One of the most active of these exponents of peace is the Rev. Howard R. Gold of New Rochelle, N. Y., who originated the memorial adopted by the New York and New England synod.

Lutheran leaders expect a lively clash in the convention when this issue arises for debate on the floor next Tuesday. Oratorical fireworks are believed to be in prospect as the opposing leaders are ready to go to battle in the convention if not on fields of war.
